Students Push For Liberal Visit Rules

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

A three-day suspension of dormitory visitation hours at Harper Hall on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus this week coincided with a renewed student effort to convince university regents that dorm visitation rights should be liberalized.

The suspension of rights of students to have guests of the opposite sex in the rooms is scheduled to run through Thursday.

It was ordered, according to Harper residence director Steve Heldt, after dorm staff members decided students weren't complying with visitation rules.

Chief among them, said Heldt, was violation of the rule that room doors must be open when guests of the opposite sex are in the rooms.

While the suspension was ordered, students in Harper Hall and two other dorms in the complex began a new effort aimed at convincing members of the Board of Regents that students support broadened visitation rights.

Dave Madsen, a journalism student from Omaha, said Wednesday that the goal is to get every dorm resident on the campus who supports the campaign to write a letter to one of the eight regents.

Madsen, a Harper Hall senate member, said he first proposed the idea a week and a half ago, and it was endorsed Monday evening.

Although the endorsement of the campaign and the announcement that visitation rights might be suspended coincided, Madsen said the campaign would've been attempted anyway.

"The important thing," said Madsen, "is that we're trying to get students to understand doing this on a rationale basis."

"If this doesn't work, I don't know what we'll do," he said. "We don't want a mass violation" of visitation policy.

Although the regents agreed earlier this academic year to permit lengthened visitation hours on Saturdays, they rejected a plan to permit far more liberalized rights on other days.

During the week, dorm floors may request the hours by a vote of residents and be granted them for up to six hours during the afternoon or evening. On Saturdays, 12 hours are permitted.

Heldt, who said staff members have an obligation to enforce current policy, said "about 90% of the time all floors" in Harper have visitation hours in effect.

He said it was the violation of the open-door rule, which students don't like, that prompted the staff to suspend the dorm's rights for three days.

The rule was being violated "by the vast majority of the people in the hall," Heldt said it appeared.

Madsen said he hopes to get the letters in the mail to the regents by their next meeting in about two weeks.

In the past, he noted, regents have said they have received many letters from parents opposed to the liberalization of rules, but have received "none on the other side."

If the campaign works, he said, the regents will have plenty of letters from another point of view.

... Nixon Asks Oil Tax Changes

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress Wednesday to spend $1.8 billion for energy research and development in 1975. He also proposed to trim the oil companies' tax break, label "energy efficient" products and relax auto emission standards for two more years.

Breaking from tradition by outlining his energy legislative proposals prior to the State of the Union message Jan. 30, Nixon also repeated earlier "highest priority" requests for passage of the emergency energy act, a windfall profits tax, a job security assistance proposal, mandatory inventory reporting by energy firms and creation of the Federal Energy Administration.

The President's five new legislative proposals, which he promised to send to Congress within "the next several weeks," were:

—A change in the law to eliminate foreign depletion allowances and modify the system of foreign tax credits for U.S. firms that produce oil overseas.

—Accelerated licensing and construction of nuclear facilities.

—Mandatory labeling of all major appliances and automobiles sold in the United States to indicate their energy use and efficiency.

—Changes in the clean air act to temporarily relax industrial emission standards where clean energy supplies are inadequate and to extend the less stringent 1975 auto emission standards for two more years. Pending legislation would extend auto standards for one year.

—An energy facilities siting act to coordinate government approval of sites for energy facilities.

First Step

Nixon noted that his request for $1.8 billion for energy research and development was the first step in a $10 billion, five-year program and nearly double the level spent a year ago. He said he also would request an increase of $216 million for supporting programs in basic and environmental effects research.

Calling on Congress to pass a bill which he submitted last April to improve the unemployment insurance program, he said he soon will propose amendments to that measure to further expand benefits for people put out of work by the energy crisis.

He described these extra energy-related unemployment benefits as "an integral part of the same philosophy which has led me to seek a windfall profits tax that prevents a few people from benefiting unduly from the energy emergency."

The President appeared to get tough on the oil industry in references to proposals for a tax on windfall profits, mandatory reporting of inventories and an elimination of the foreign depletion allowance.

'Benefit Of All'

"We must not permit private profiteering at the expense of public sacrifice," he said. "The sacrifices made by the American people must be for the benefit of all the people, not just for the benefit of big business."

The President said his proposal to eliminate the 22% depletion allowance for U.S. companies who produce oil overseas would stimulate domestic production. A similar 22% allowance for domestically produced oil would not be eliminated.

Although this was the first time Nixon has mentioned any specific proposal for cutting tax breaks for oil companies because of the energy crisis, a Treasury spokesman described it as "more symbolic than important." He said it would amount to no more than several hundred million dollars.

The President also said that "it is no longer realistic" to give U.S. oil firms credit for all of the taxes they pay abroad. He said he had asked the Treasury Department to devise a proposal which would "cause part of these amounts to be designated as a creditable tax and the balance to be allowed solely as a deduction."

Referring to the clean air standards, Nixon said he hoped Congress would agree to delay tough auto emission control standards until 1977. The tougher standards already have been postponed once by the Environmental Protection Agency until 1975 in favor of less stringent "interim" standards.

The President said he also would propose a change in the law requiring metropolitan areas to reduce nitrogen oxide levels in 1976 by 90%. He cited recent EPA advice that the deadlines, which would restrict automobile use, cannot be met.

By administrative action, Nixon said he also would increase to 10 million the number of acres leased for oil and gas exploration on the outer continental shelf and stimulate synthetic fuel production.

DST Exemption Bill Dies Quickly

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Urban Affairs Committee Wednesday dealt Sen. John DeCamp's bill to exempt eastern Nebraska from daylight savings time a speedy death.

The only comment offered during the committee's executive session was Sen. George Syas' remark, "Let's not open this can of worms."

Sens. Fowler, Murphy, Schmit, Syas and Snyder voted to kill the bill, while Sen. Herb Duis cast the lone vote to save LB651.

During the public hearing on LB651, DeCamp anticipated opposition to the bill and chided the committee for not being sympathetic to rural problems which he said daylight savings time in mid-winter is.

"I recognize the odds of this bill coming out of committee are extremely limited, and that this is a problem we're going to have to suffer," DeCamp said.

"It's unfortunate for rural people that we have to suffer the most" under daylight savings, he suggested.

Daylight savings time, DeCamp maintained, forces rural school children to wait for buses on unlighted roads, has caused "complete chaos" in rural business hours and has realized a fuel savings of possibly as little as .5%.

Despite DeCamp's claims that daylight savings is a rural issue, no one appeared to favor his bill.

Urban members of the committee quickly lashed out at DeCamp's remarks. Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis said urban children on split shifts have gone to school in the dark long before daylight savings was ever instituted to conserve energy.

Omaha Sen. George Syas noted that nothing is keeping the rural schools from starting later.

Duis and Syas, two Republicans, noted that Gov. J. James Exon could have petitioned the federal government to exempt Nebraska from daylight savings as the governors of Indiana and Nevada did.

DeCamp, a Democrat as is Exon, conceded, "Yes, the governor could have exerted more pressure. He had it within his power."

Sam Jensen, an Omaha attorney for the Nebraska Committee for Time Uniformity, opposed the bill, saying it would put Nebraska out-of-time with neighboring states, disrupt network television and airline schedules and hurt Missouri River communities.

In other matters, the committee held Sen. Orval Keyes' LB629 for later action. The controversial bill would force sanitary improvement districts to obtain city and county approval for comprehensive plans.

Keyes said LB629 "will keep the SID's honest." In the past, complaints have been voiced by property owners in areas where sewer services are provided by the districts.

As Guard Against Big Blue River Flooding . . .

Reservoirs And Dams 'Economically Unfeasible'

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Residents of the Big Blue River basin were told Wednesday night construction of reservoirs and dams are "economically unfeasible" to protect against flooding, and the best the state can do is apply land treatment.

About 90 persons jammed a Statehouse hearing chamber for an informational meeting in response to inquiries from basin residents. Milligan Sen. Richard Maresh arranged the meeting.

Dale Williamson, executive secretary of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission (NRC), said the state recommended to the Army Corps of Engineers that action be delayed on dam structures until the problems can be studied further.

Jerry Wallin of NRC said previous studies show the four proposed dams in the Big Blue basin do not meet federal standards, requiring that "every project must return a dollar or more in benefits for every dollar spent."

What Can State Do?

One person asked Williamson what indeed the state can do for the area, if current economic standards don't justify returns on building flood control structures.

Williamson replied the state can:

—Build levee projects at Crete, Beatrice and DeWitt;
—Undertake additional flood plain management;
—And re-evaluate the losses in the Oct. 12, 1973, flood which inundated the lower half of the basin, including Beatrice and DeWitt. He said the losses recorded are probably "too low."

Flood Effects Excluded
Wallin said the effects of the 1973 flood were not included in the data forming the basis for NRC's and the Army Corps of Engineers' negative building recommendation to Washington.

Albert E. Mathews, NRC flood plain management engineer, told the group the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, signed into law Dec. 31, "puts communities on the spot to go with unstructured programs immediately," such as Williamson suggested.

A Lower Big Blue Natural Resources District (NRD) official urged that the state should put more money into water resources projects, calling the current "$133,000 a year really ridiculous."

Otherwise, he said, more local financing will be required through the NRDs' mill levies. He said the basin should "quit wanting the big daddy from Washington to come down and help us every time we get a flood."

Among the speakers was Norman Behrens of Crete, who said, "The problem with the river is man and the way he has developed it."

'Most Studied Valley'
Behrens said he is "trying to get people to react before (another) flood comes." He called the Big Blue basin "the most studied valley and the least constructed in the nation."

He's afraid, he said, he "can't generate any enthusiasm in Crete" unless water "two feet deep" floods residents' homes.

Showing aerial pictures of 1973's devastating flood, Behrens chided state highway engineers for building bridges in lowland valleys that he said essentially create dikes, with the bridges acting as funnels and flooding bottomlands.

Watergate Panel To Resume Hearings

Washington (UPI) — In its first party line vote, the Senate Watergate Committee decided Wednesday to hold two weeks of hearings on President Nixon's campaign contributions from billionaire Howard Hughes and dairy industry cooperatives. Nixon's friend, C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, might be called to testify.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., emerged from a three-hour closed meeting to announce the committee had voted 4 to 3 to resume public hearings next Tuesday.

The four Democrats on the committee voted in favor of resuming the hearings and the three Republicans voted against — the first such party line vote in the committee's year-long existence.

Ervin said the committee staff would draw up a new witness list and that he hoped Rebozo would be called to testify. Rebozo has acknowledged accepting $100,000 in campaign contributions from Hughes, which he later returned.

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., the committee vice chairman, told reporters outside the committee room he wanted the panel to end its work and turn over its findings to the House Judiciary Committee, now studying the possibility of impeaching Nixon.

"The matter compelling the attention of the American people at this time is impeachment . . ."

the impeachment resolution," Javits said. "The national urgency is great to settle this question."

Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., said that if Nixon resigns he will fade quickly into obscurity. Waldie, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, repeated at a news conference his earlier statement that Nixon will resign before April.

The Judiciary Committee is looking for possible grounds for impeaching Nixon in the mass of material accumulated by other investigations of Watergate.

Rodino has set late April as a target date for a report to the House. But he said it could take the rest of the year if the committee is unable to get Jaworski's information. Although talks with Jaworski will continue, Rodino said the committee will explore other avenues that might give it access to the special prosecutor's material, including legislation that would require such cooperation.

Another possible approach would be for Jaworski and the committee to make a joint request to Federal Judge John K. Sirica for release of the grand jury evidence to the committee.

Jaworski Still Refuses To Share Evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee said Wednesday its impeachment inquiry could drag on for months without the cooperation of Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Jaworski has so far refused to share with the committee any evidence he may have gathered concerning President Nixon on the grounds he is prevented from doing so by the secrecy surrounding grand jury proceedings.

Higher Taxes For Oil Firms Urged

Washington — In a long message to Congress, President Nixon asked for greater taxation of oil companies' foreign profits and proposed a two-year freeze on automobile emission standards. The message sought to rally Congress and the public behind Nixon's determination to make the United States in-

Nixon Will 'Fight Like Hell'

Washington — President Nixon reportedly told Republican leaders that he will "fight like hell" against efforts to impeach him. Reports on a recent meeting between the President and 18 Republican members of the House portray Nixon as firm in his refusal to consider resigning and determined to fight the current house inquiry into his possible impeachment. (More on Page 2.)

Watergate Hearings To Resume

Washington — In a straight party-line vote, the Senate Watergate Committee decided to end its two-month recess and resume public hearings next week. The hearings will begin with testimony on the $100,000 given to the President's friend, Charles G. Rebozo, by agents of Howard Hughes. (More on Page 1.)

Israel Begins Suez Pullback

By The Associated Press
President Anwar Sadat of Egypt told newsmen in Rabat, Morocco, that he has "noted among the Syrians a readiness to agree to such disengagement." He declined to elaborate, but said a Syrian-Israeli agreement similar to last week's accord to separate the Egyptian and Israeli armies was the next essential step on the road to peace.

The Israeli newspaper Maariv reported that Jordan's King Hussein submitted a disengagement plan to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, that Israel has received the plan and negotiations would begin soon. The newspaper gave no details. Egypt and Syria were the main Arab combatants against Israel in last October's war, with Jordan and other Arab nations sending token contingents to the Syrian front.

In Cairo, United Nations Emergency Force spokesman

Rudolf Stajduhar said it was the first time Egyptians, driving a convoy of ambulances to pick up the wounded, were allowed to drive into Suez since Israeli forces cut the road last October. U.N. drivers had handled convoys of nonmilitary supplies to Suez in the meantime.

Israeli tanks and troops began withdrawing from the west bank of Egypt's Suez Canal on Wednesday. Jordan and Syria were reported pursuing their own military disengagement agreements with Israel.

Israel permitted Egyptian medical teams through Israeli lines on the west side of the canal to evacuate 300 wounded Egyptian troops, trapped in the city of Suez since last October's Arab-Israeli war, the Israeli state radio said. The Israelis began pulling equipment off the west side of the canal two days ahead of schedule.

FTC For Stronger Warning

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission told Congress Wednesday it should strengthen the printed warning on cigarettes, and add a warning to little cigars, to let smokers know they may be running the risk of cancer, heart disease and other ailments.

It also recommended the government start an advertising campaign on radio and television and in print to discourage smoking, especially among young persons, and launch a research program to develop a "safe" cigarette.

The present health warning on cigarette packages reads: "Warning: The surgeon general has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

The FTC report said that should be changed to read: "Warning: Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer, coronary heart disease, chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema and other diseases."

Agriculture Officials Confident U.S. Faces No Bread Shortage

Washington (UPI) — The Agriculture Department predicted Wednesday that U.S. wheat reserves will drop late this spring to their lowest point since 1947, increasing the probability that President Nixon will order imports from Canada as a hedge against shortages and soaring bread prices.

High department officials said they were confident there would be no break shortage this spring. The baking industry predicted recently that bread might cost as much as $1 a loaf this spring unless the government curbs wheat exports, but Nixon declared last weekend these reports were "ridiculous."

Means, Wilson Win Primary

Pine Ridge, S.D. (UPI) — Two arch-foes of the 1973 armed occupation of Wounded Knee Wednesday were named the winners of the Oglala Sioux presidential primary and will face each other in a run-off election Feb. 7.

Russell Means, 34, a national leader of the American Indian Movement, and incumbent president Dick Wilson, 39, finished the primary atop a field of 13 candidates.

Means led all contenders with 667 votes, and Wilson was second with 511. Running third was a former president, Gerald One Feather, with 367.

Agriculture Department economists, in a revised forecast of supply and demand for major crops, also raised their estimates of 1974 wheat and corn production to record levels. Consequently, they said, reserve stocks of both grains will be rising after this year's harvests, with the prospect of greater supplies and potential relief from food price inflation.

The latest forecast said that with exports approaching record levels in the current marketing season, reserve stocks of "old" wheat left on hand when the 1974 harvest arrives this summer are now expected to be down to 182 million bushels, the lowest carryover since 1947.

Until Wednesday, the July 1 carryover into the 1974-75 marketing season had been officially estimated at 210 million bushels. The 28 million-bushel cut was caused mainly by a 25

Senate OKs Bill To Bar Military Aid To Greece

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Wednesday voted to bar military aid to Greece until the Athens regime restores a democratic government and agrees to fulfill its obligations to NATO.

The bill was passed and sent to the House on a voice vote. Its fate was uncertain there, and it would almost certainly be vetoed by President Nixon if it was approved.

The bill does allow the President to give aid if he notifies Congress 30 days in advance that the "overriding national interest" requires it.

Nixon To 'Fight Like Hell' Against Impeachment

Washington — President Nixon has told Republican congressmen he will "fight like hell" against moves to impeach him, a position in sharp contrast with the one he took in the last impeachment inquiry with which he had to deal.

In 1970, Nixon told a House inquiry into the impeachment of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas that the administration was "clearly obligated" to cooperate and make information available to an impeachment inquiry.

Belated reports from a White House meeting Tuesday between the President and 18 Republican members of the House picture the President as firm in his refusal to resign and committed to fighting the House inquiry into his impeachment.

Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., who said the President had authorized the release of his comments to the press, said Nixon told the group of his intentions to resist the impeachment inquiry.

"I took notes on what he said," Frelinghuysen said Wednesday. "and he told us, 'There is a time to be timid. There is a time to be conciliatory. There is a time, even, to fly and there is a time to fight. And I'm going to fight like hell.'"

Although the statement is the first on the President's determination to fight impeachment directly attributed to him, other White House officials have said there is a general determination to consider the impeachment inquiry "political" and to resist the inquiry.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Militant Protestant legislators stalked out of Northern Ireland's assembly Wednesday to protest the power sharing policies of the province's coalition administration of moderate Protestants and Roman Catholics.

They vowed they would not return.

Long Says Nixon May Pay Tax

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said Wednesday that President Nixon almost certainly will be asked to pay back taxes because he was not entitled to the $576,000 deduction he claimed on the gift of his vice presidential papers. Long, chairman of the House-Senate committee that is investigating Nixon's taxes at the President's request, said everything he has seen so far indicates the deduction was improper.

Exxon Profits Up 60%

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp., the nation's biggest oil company, estimated Wednesday that its profits rose by nearly 60 per cent in 1973.

But the company's chairman denied that it had capitalized on the energy shortage to increase its earnings.

Asked at a news conference how he felt about a proposed tax on windfall profits arising from the nation's energy problems, Chairman J.K. Jamieson said: "We have no windfall profits."

Jamieson said the earnings increase came primarily from Exxon's foreign operations. And he said the additional money was needed to finance exploration and expansion programs to meet future energy needs.

He said the company planned to make capital expenditures of a record $6.1 billion this year, 73 per cent more than its 1973 total, and that those expenditures would total $16 billion over the next four years.

The company said its earnings last year were $2.44 billion, compared with $1.53 billion in 1972. Profits in the final three months of 1973 also showed closed to a 60 per cent gain over the last quarter the year before, Exxon said.

Meanwhile, Union Oil of California, 12th biggest in the industry, announced that its preliminary earnings were up almost 50 per cent from $121.9 million in 1972 to $180.2 million last year.

Jamieson said Exxon's earnings from domestic petroleum and natural gas operations rose 16 per cent from $715 million in 1972 to $833 million last year. Most of that increase, he said, was demonstrably justified by higher sales volume.

Domestic sales volume was up 14.1 per cent, he said, as "Exxon went all out to supply customers with maximum quantities."

Petroleum and natural gas operations in the Eastern Hemisphere, where the company experienced its greatest profit increase, were up 83 per cent to $998 million, from $544 million in 1972, Jamieson said, while profits for the Western Hemisphere excluding the United States were up 48 per cent to $998 million, from $544 million in 1972.

Jamieson said that with the higher profits, the company had achieved an 18.8 per cent return on shareholders' equity, or investment, compared with 1.8 per cent for 1972.

Jamieson said in 1972 General Motors had a return on equity of 18.5 per cent; Ford 14.6 per cent, and General Electric 17.2 per cent. He said the company's new equity results were adequate for its higher capital expenditures.

Ikard Rejects Cut In Oil's Tax Breaks

Washington (UPI) — The head of the American Petroleum Institute strongly rejected President Nixon's proposals Wednesday to reduce tax breaks now given to the oil industry, but said oil companies might go along with some form of excess profits tax.

API President Frank N. Ikard also pledged "full cooperation" of API and its member oil companies to the government's efforts to get fuller and more "credible" information on the industry's resources, reserves, inventories and refinery capacity of fuels.

Ikard held the first of a series of news conferences shortly after President Nixon asked Congress to eliminate foreign depletion allowances for oil firms and to reduce their U.S. income tax credits for taxes paid to foreign governments.

Ikard said it would be "a mistake at this point in time to disturb the tax treatment given to extractive industries" through depletion allowances. To do so, he said, would "create a tremendous psychological impact" that might discourage development of new sources of energy.

Ikard declined to take a definite stand on the administration's proposal for a windfall profits tax on the oil industry. He said opinion varies in the industry.

Budget Broken Down

Washington (UPI) — Here is a breakdown of President Nixon's proposed $1.8 billion budget next year for energy research and development:

- $725 million for improved nuclear power generating technology. A $194 million increase over 1973-74 spending.
- $422 million for making liquid and gas fuels from coal, the most plentiful U.S. energy source, plus improved coal mining and reclamation techniques. Up by $262 million from fiscal 1974.
- $179 million for pollution controls, including removal of sulfur oxide from coal-burning stack gases. Up from $66 million this year.
- $169 million for nuclear fusion research, including use of lasers. Increase of $68 million from current spending.
- $116 million for more efficient electrical transmission, energy storage, conversion of wastes, energy conversion systems and other conservation measures. A $51 million increase over this year.
- $50 million for heating and cooling of buildings using solar energy. Up from $14 million this year.
- $45 million for development power from geothermal energy, or natural underground steam. Up $11 million over fiscal 1974.
- $42 million for shale oil development and improved methods of recovering gas and oil. An increase of $23 million.

Report: Firms Denied Oil To U.S. Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Wednesday he has received "reliable reports" that some U.S. oil companies cut off supplies of Arab oil to U.S. military forces last November.

Jackson said he has received "independent documentation" of a Dec. 1 article in Business Week that Exxon ordered its overseas outlets to cut off the oil supplies one day after a Nov. 4 meeting with Saudi Arabian officials.

Business Week reported that the Saudi Arabians warned they would fight any flow of oil by tightening the oil embargo already in effect at the time.

The Business Week article quoted a confidential message from Exxon headquarters in New York to company representatives in Europe saying "under a decision of King Faisal, Aramco member companies were ordered to cut off supply of products derived from Saudi oil to U.S. forces stationed around the world."

The U.S. forces were placed on a worldwide alert from Oct. 25 to Oct. 31 as a result of the Middle East fighting.

Aramco is a combination of international oil companies, including Exxon, Standard Oil of California, Mobil and Texaco, drilling in Saudi Arabia.

The magazine article said that the cutoff forced the United States to supply its 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean Sea by a massive air and sea lift when there was a possibility of renewed Mideast fighting.

"The story is substantially reliable," Jackson said. He declined to name his sources although at one point he indicated his information came from the Defense Department.

Jackson ordered representatives of the four U.S. members of Aramco to give his investigations subcommittee all documents relating to the alleged cutoff.

Jackson said the companies' actions were "harmful to the nation's security at a critical time."

Earlier Wednesday, Jackson concluded that his investigations subcommittee has "not turned up any hard evidence that the major oil companies deliberately created" the energy crisis.

But, Jackson added, "we still do not have the facts to lay these suspicions entirely to rest." He threatened the oil executives testifying before the subcommittee with subpoenas if they refused to turn over requested data.

During the third day of hearings, Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., asked the panel of seven oil executives how the oil price charged by Arab nations was determined.

Z. D. Bonner, president of Gulf Oil-U.S., testified that the price was set by negotiations between the oil companies and the Arab governments.

Bonner also defended recent fuel price increases, saying that for years gasoline had been sold "at virtually giveaway prices."

Export Quotas Put On Oil Products

WASHINGTON (AP) — Responding to congressional criticism, the Nixon administration placed export quotas on gasoline and other key fuel oil products Wednesday.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent, announcing the action, said the allowable exports will amount to less than four-tenths of one per cent of daily domestic consumption.

The decision applies to gasoline and blending agents, aviation gasoline, distillate fuel oils and residual fuel oils.

Morton Signs Pipeline Permit

Washington (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton Wednesday signed the long-awaited permit for a 789-mile, $5 billion pipeline to tap the rich oil fields of Alaska's North Slope.

Construction is expected to start this spring.

"With a little cooperation from the weather man, I am optimistic that the oil of the North Slope will reach markets in the lower 48 states by 1977," Morton said.

Officials of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., which will build and operate the line, handed Morton a check for $12.15 million to pay for environmental studies in connection with construction.

Dent said that the government may put quotas on other oil products, such as kerosene, jet fuel, propane and natural gas liquids, if exports exceed historical levels.

For gasoline, the export quota is 4.772 barrels daily for the first three months of this year. Domestic consumption is 6.5 million barrels daily, Dent said.

For distillate fuel oil, the quota for the first quarter is 5,620 barrels daily, compared with domestic consumption of 3 million barrels daily.

For residual fuel, the quota is 35,627 barrels daily. Domestic consumption is 3 million barrels daily.

Deregulation Of New Gas Asked

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon Wednesday asked Congress to deregulate the price of new natural gas but said the plan "should not cause a significant rise in consumer prices for some years."

But he said there was a need to provide added insurance to prevent any rapid rise in the price of natural gas, which heats more than 50% of the homes in the United States.

Nixon termed natural gas prices "artificially low." The prices are now controlled at the well head by the Federal Power Commission.

The Federal Energy Office has estimated that the supply of natural gas now trails demand by more than 5%.

But unlike the oil crisis, rationing can not help conserve the natural gas supply. Pressure in natural gas pipelines must either be maintained or shut off completely.

Eastern Airlines Tells Huge Loss

New York (AP) — Eastern Airlines, one of the nation's largest airlines, reported it had lost $51.3 million or $2.73 a share during 1973.

Floyd D. Hall, Eastern's chairman, attributed the huge loss to a variety of problems.

Eastern had a profit of $19.8 million or $1.20 a share in 1972.

Hall noted that operating revenues for the year ended Dec. 31 were $1.26 billion, a gain of 8.5% over 1972, but operating expenses were up 15.5% to $1.28 billion.

Hall said fuel costs in 1973 are expected to be more than doubled in 1974.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

There is no question of what the key fiscal decision by the Legislature will be during its 1974 session. The key decision will be the rate of the state income tax, now fixed at 11% but recommended by Gov. J. James Exon in his budget message to go to 13%.

The lower figure represents the rate set in an obvious political move by the Republican-dominated State Board of Equalization. The governor's budget was accepted in the Legislature about as one might expect, mostly well received by Democratic senators and criticized by GOP members.

For the state of Nebraska, we hope that the senators finally go along with the governor rather than the prior budget outline of their own fiscal staff. Exon's spending blueprint is nearly 10% higher than estimated spending for the current year and some 30% higher in the general fund than the legislative fiscal analyst's.

Compared to the fiscal staff, the governor would provide $1.3 million more to the University of Nebraska, $5 million more for welfare and $1.3 million more for institutions. Apparently, he would drop off a little from the fiscal staff in some other areas.

The budget figures from all sources deserve careful review, of course, before any final decisions are reached but the governor, for the first time in his administration, appears to have opted for some real progress. If that is a political move, we simply are thankful that elections are being held this year.

Institutions, welfare and the university have not fared well in the past, in our opinion, and we very much need to get the ball rolling in a more progressive fashion. Some aspects of the governor's budget are curious and the details of his figures will be important but he is proposing an overall improvement of merit.

We have heard a lot of talk recently about top-heavy cash balances but they do not seem to be reflected in the governor's income projections for the state. Perhaps by year's end, they will not be as monumental as they now are.

Also, his budget has to rest on a good growth factor in the private economy of the state for 1974-75, since he proposes the same tax rate that existed in 1973-74. The tax year and the state's fiscal operating year do not coincide, of course, which makes exact comparisons a little difficult.

As we understand it, Exon has proposed that the 13% income tax rate be made retroactive to January 1, 1974. If his budget is predicated on that, it makes the situation all the more sticky.

Senators might agree to change back to the higher 13% rate but they may not be too inclined to make the change retroactive, a shift that would have an even greater impact upon taxpayers in 1974.

In the event of such a change, taxpayers would really face three different levels of income taxation within a year's time, not the sort of thing calculated to make for happy citizens. The fault, of course, lies with the State Board of Equalization, not the governor.

And that situation, as we have noted before, should spur senators to do something about the rate-setting process. At the same time, they would be well advised to bring the tax year and the state budgeting year into greater harmony for the sake of better understanding and consistency.

But if the 13% rate is spurned in all regards, state operations would be dealt a severely damaging blow. For a change, we have an opportunity to move forward and at no greater real cost to taxpayers than has been the case in past years.

Some senators may figure out ways to criticize the governor but to do any less than he has proposed would be nothing short of irresponsible.

Needy Would Suffer From Fuel Shortage

WASHINGTON — Unless the needy get massive federal help to pay their soaring fuel bills, warns a confidential government study, "many of the poor and weak and sick and old will die."

The report, prepared for anti-poverty chief Alvin Arnett by his Boston office, warns that a sudden cold snap could actually kill many citizens in northern states.

"There can be no debate about one fact of the energy crisis," declares the report starkly. "The poor and the near-poor will suffer the most extreme deprivation and severe hardships."

Responding to the crisis, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is summoning federal and state officials to an emergency meeting of his nutrition subcommittee. He hopes to find $40 million to help the poor keep warm through the winter.

The Boston report claims that people on welfare, social security, low pensions and small fixed salaries don't have enough money these days to pay for both adequate food and home heat.

If fuel oil goes up 10 cents a gallon in Connecticut, for instance, 48,343 poor residents won't be able to afford fuel without $4 million in federal aid, the report alleges.

In Maine, "the 'fuel crisis has the potential (of) personal tragedy,'" states the study. "Over 20% of its population (is) in substandard housing without central heat, without insulation, without conventional weather proofing."

Yet Maine, showing more concern for its poor than most other states, has a program to finance plastic storm windows, caulking, wood stoves, general and emergency depots for wood, oil and kerosene.

Concludes the document: "We must move quickly. The wheels of bureaucracy turn with notorious deliberation, but Mother Nature is neither likely to be fooled by news releases nor to control her temper much longer."

FOOTNOTE: A staff memo, prepared for McGovern, recommends a supplemental appropriation of $40 million. This would provide a fuel stamp and voucher system, a federal program on the Maine model and "energy offices" around the country to assist the poor.

We have written our share of stories criticizing the Postal Service. But internal documents show that the nation's mailmen made a tremendous effort to avoid a Christmas log-jam.

"At 7 a.m., December 24," states one memo, "the letter mail volume on hand at our 88 largest offices was 6.3 million pieces. This was normal workload and reflected no delays."

Last year hundreds of millions of delayed pieces of mail were on hand.

"The largest 116 post offices reported current mail processing with the exception of a few scattered delays due to weather," Denver, which was snowbound on Christmas Eve, was one of the worst trouble points.

The giant postal complex at St. Louis was snowbound on December 19 and caravans of piggy-back trucks carrying mail to Texas had to be routed via Chicago.

Dream On, O Ship Of State . . .

Exploiting The Finite

Columnist Jack Anderson reported on this page Tuesday that Occidental Petroleum Corp. has developed a revolutionary process to extract almost two trillion barrels of oil locked in the shale formations of the Rocky Mountains in the western United States.

The news of Occidental's pilot project was exciting to federal energy officials who are coordinating this nation's efforts to achieve energy self-sufficiency. And it should excite the fuel consumer and the environmentalist, too.

The technique substitutes deep mining and heat injection for the older surface mining-rock heating and crushing method of extracting the oil. And it promises to do so at less than one-fourth the cost of the old method and without leaving the massive heaps of crushed shale to scar the western landscape.

Of course any concerted effort — no matter how well designed the technique that is employed — to exploit the area for its oil resources will result in some environmental destruction and social and economic adjustments in that area. But this appears to be by far the least damaging and at the same time least costly method of unlocking an oil treasure which could go a long way toward helping the nation meet its energy needs. Hopefully, the oil industry will be offered every encouragement toward conducting conclusive tests as to its feasibility.

The oil held within the shale is estimated to total nearly three times the world's present proven reserves and at the current rate of consumption, this would be enough to supply United States oil needs for perhaps 140 years. The potential, then, is staggering.

But if the oil producers can successfully extract huge volumes of oil from the shale at a cost they can bear and sell it at prices the consumer can afford and if in the process the "energy crisis" is brought under control over the short term, that still is not the answer that Project Independence, the search for energy self-sufficiency, is looking for.

Our technological society runs largely on oil — a finite resource. It will run out some day and if everyone doesn't realize that, they should. Development of a clean and economic method of extracting oil from shale cannot be a substitute. It should not lessen the drive to find and harness other forms of energy for our future use.

Spreading It Out

The Douglas County Board of Commissioners apparently did not have its collective ear to the ground in December when the commissioners granted themselves a pay increase of $3,000 — from $12,000 to $15,000 annually.

The commissioners should have remembered the public outrage directed at the whopping pay increase members of Congress gave themselves some four years ago, but they apparently didn't.

The public reacted as should have been expected, however, and the embarrassed board Tuesday voted to roll back the salary increase to its previous level. The issue was compounded by a Douglas County attorney's office ruling that the board could not rescind the increase after Jan. 14, but that is beside the point.

By contrast, the Lancaster County Board of Commissioners used a softer approach in hiking its own salary. Under state law, the pay of elected county officials is to be set for a four-year period so the Lancaster County board, while taking care of the other county officials, gave each commissioner a five and one-half per cent annual increase starting in 1975. Commissioner's pay will go from the present $10,000 to $10,500 the first year and on up to $12,155 in 1978.

We think that the public recognizes that elected officials are due pay increases. But the manner in which the Lancaster board attended to it is much more preferable than an elected body rewarding itself with a percentage increase the average citizen will never see in one year, especially if the pay level is adequate to begin with. The public is certain to react negatively to the latter approach.

JAMES RESTON

Don't Count Nixon Out

WASHINGTON — There is a widely held view here that President Nixon is now tapped and trapped, that the courts and the Congress are closing in on him, and that it is only a question of time before the evidence forces his resignation or impeachment.

Maybe so, but this is too simple and probably misjudges the power of the presidency, the weakness of the Congress, the patience and compassion of the people, and Nixon's capacity to act faster than the Congress, the courts, or the press. He has made a life career out of disaster and he could do it again.

In the next few weeks, he will be in a position to dominate the news, not only with his State of the Union address, but with his budget, his messages to the Congress on whatever subject he chooses, and his power to address the world on trade, energy, monetary reform, arms control and peace in the Middle East.

He cannot impose his will on the Congress, as he did for so long in Vietnam, but even in his present weakened state, he can direct the attention of the nation to his thought, lead the front pages and the TV network news broadcasts with his pronouncements, and thus, paradoxically, use what he regards as his "enemies" to dramatize his cause.

This is still a formidable force. Let the pundits say what they like, Franklin Roosevelt once remarked, just let me make the news. There is a difference now, of course, for the people and the Congress are tired of the appearance of sincerity and want the real thing, but Nixon still has the power to act, to appoint, to negotiate, to veto, to release facts in his possession, and even at this late date to demonstrate that he intends to preside over an open and reformist government.

If the people were determined to get rid of him, none of these powers would save him, but as most members of Congress discovered over the holidays, the people may long for a new beginning and wish he would merely go away, but they are confused, troubled and divided, and this gives him time for maneuver.

Also, if what I have heard in the last few weeks on both coasts means anything, a great many people still don't know what "impeachment" means, and might think it too good for him if they did, but they still hold back from putting him in the dock.

There is, too, a wide streak of cynicism in this country about the whole democratic process. One hears it said over and over again and by people who are convinced that the President was deeply involved in the scandals and the cover-up that, after all, this is a crooked world that requires crooked ways, secret deals, and bold evasive leadership.

This is not by any means a popular or dominant attitude, but there is enough of it around to help explain the paradox that many people don't trust the President but don't want to drum him out of office, especially since they don't put much faith in the Congress or the press, either.

No wonder then that the legislators came back here almost as confused as they were when they went home. They thought the people, who do not have the power of subpoena and have not read the record, would relieve them of the responsibility they were elected to perform, but they didn't get a clear answer.

Accordingly, Nixon has another chance. The state of the Union is that we have no union, no common view of how to get out of the pickle, no clear realization that moral corruption is worse than petty crime, and not even much confidence that any alternative would be better than the poor outfit we now have. Maybe this is wisdom or mental and moral laziness, but anyway, it is Nixon's last chance.

He still has many options. He cannot deal with the state of the Union without dealing with the state of the President. He could clean — if he dare — give a more candid account of the Nixon men and the Nixon system in the scandals than ever before; release all documents to the Congress bearing on possible criminal action by his associates.

He could come forward with specific proposals for fundamental reforms in the financing of presidential campaigns, redefine "executive privilege" and "national security," and suggest much stricter controls on

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

This morning at 7:45 The Farmer went to work in town and I set about washing the breakfast dishes. Usually when I wash the dishes, I look out of the windows over the sink and see all sorts of morning activity . . . the small brood of pheasants that cross the end of the lane, the cat that crosses the farm yard or the first truck to roll down the roadway. All of this under a bright sun or perhaps cloud banks quite visible along the horizon. What did I see this morning at 7:45? The moon riding high above my window, a thin, crescent of a moon, silvery and bright, slipping down the western sky.

The pheasants still had their heads tucked under their wings in deep sleep, no doubt, and the cat curled into a ball in some barn loft dreaming of a nice fat mouse.

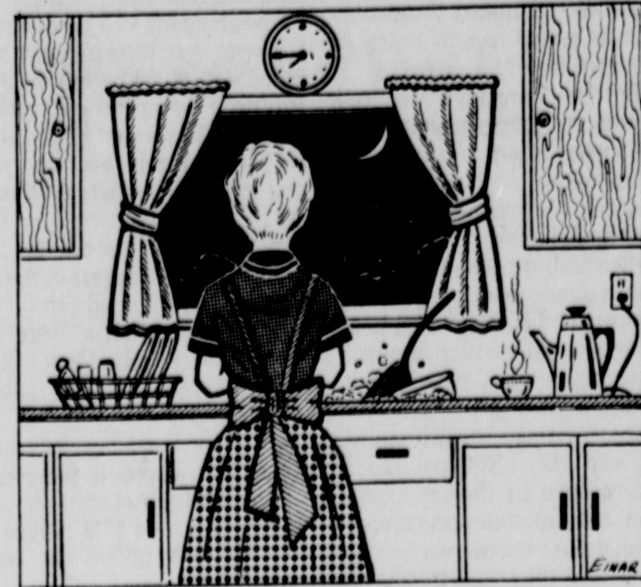

In fact I felt much as if I still belonged under a warm blanket dozing blissfully in the darkness, dreaming of faraway beaches and swaying palm trees.

Immediately after The Farmer left and I had finished the dishes, I turned right around and started to do some baking, thinking all the time how foolish I was to again make more dishes to wash and a nice clean work bench to wipe clean.

I rolled crust for two pies, one apple and the other peach, made from frozen fruit in the deep freeze. I mix the fruit, sugar and flour when the fruit is in season, fresh from the orchard and pour into pie tins. When the fruit is frozen I unmold the pies and wrap in a plastic wrapping material and return them to the freezer.

It didn't take long to make the pies since all I had to do was to mix the pie crust and slip the frozen fillings into the crust.

Later when the pies were done, I had cookies to put into the oven. The oven was heated and I thought I would conserve my bit of energy rather than start the oven again in a day or two, although I have always made a practice of this, anyway . . . such as making an entire dinner in the oven if a beef roast were baking.

Not since before Christmas have I sat down to read a book but the past week I have been reading two. One of them is written by Earl Hamner Jr. called "Spencer's Mountain." It has been a very entertaining book. I read one of the chapters to The Farmer and we laughed more than we have laughed since the snow storms started, which were nothing to laugh about.

The other book was given to me by a cousin in Lincoln, written by Nebraska's own Willa Cather. It is the last three stories by Miss Cather. I have enjoyed these stories very much since I like stories of this writer and have read all of her books.

The next reading I do will be from a seed catalog, although I know it will be some time before I can expect to see radishes growing in the garden.

Right now a huge bank of snow covers the entire garden but it will provide for the needed moisture, come spring, when the struggling seeds need an extra bit of water to keep them growing.

I hope the weather man gave us a true statement when he predicted temperatures into the fifties today. I am certain his words will ring true. How the snow will sink and how the water will run off the roof-tops. Perhaps the icicles will finally melt. I hope they do. I have looked for so long at them hanging from our windows that it will be a welcome change to see the sun shine stream in their place.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by the writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Roller-Coaster

Lincoln, Neb.
In his book, "Exon, Biography of a Governor," Duane Hutchinson remarks that Governor Exon's guideline for considering appointees for any job is that they are "... the most qualified for (that) specific job." He also feels that no one else need apply, right?

So how did Thomas Doyle, a chemical engineer, end up as head of the Department of Roads? Take a bow, governor.

We as Nebraskans should think about that statement, "the most qualified," in this upcoming year. We need competence, not talk.

If one were to follow the governor's stand on the tax issue alone, one would find very interesting results. Depending upon where he is, whom he is talking to, and the situation at hand, we find that taxes can be lowered, have to be raised, or just let slide. One gets the feeling he is on a verbal roller-coaster.

Maybe the governor can now tell us where on the roller-coaster called "General Fund" we now are. Are there any more $7.5 million errors on the slate?

One suggestion. If the governor would level with the Board of Equalization and other committees as to the state of affairs concerning those committees, maybe this roller-coaster would level off. Or maybe he doesn't feel that those people are qualified.

Let us follow the governor's own philosophy and elect someone to that office who is "the most qualified" for that job.

Rock Concerts

Lincoln, Neb.
A few weeks ago it was reported in The Star that rock concerts at Pershing Auditorium have been paying the rent and the taxes for the auditorium. Manager Ike Hoig was quoted as saying the rock concerts "have been a very great thing for us." I wonder if the price the community pays is worth it.

Many teenagers for the first time are introduced to drugs at a rock concert. They observe that marijuana smoking is everywhere and nothing much is done about it. So they are also introduced to the idea that marijuana-smoking laws are not enforced. The drug users seem to have accepted the present-day morality that it is all right as long as one does not get caught. They also point out that few get caught because no one seems to care, including the law-enforcement officers.

I think it is dangerous when our community is led to believe that balancing the budget is more important than enforcing the laws.

Two Different Points

Lincoln, Neb.
I wish to thank Mr. Dieckmann for his note in the paper, and to comment on his comments.

A poll was taken and the majority of people in the United States agree with the Supreme Court decision. Remember, most people in the U.S. live on the two coasts, not here in Nebraska.

The basis of Mr. Dieckmann's argument is the Bible and Christian religion. This country has many faiths and the government is based on legal and constitutional law, not on any one religion. So it is really a waste of time for us to discuss the matter since we are arguing from two points of reference. There can be no communication of any value.

One person may live as he wishes, but he has no right to impose his religious beliefs on another. Remember, that's why the Pilgrims came to this country in the first place.

Mr. Dieckmann is a man and has little understanding of women. No man will tell me what to do with my body.

David City, Neb.
On Jan. 22, we celebrate the first anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision to protect the privacy of a woman even to the point of destruction of human life in the womb of a woman. Until a constitutional amendment can be passed to protect the rights of the unborn, other steps must be taken to reverse and weaken the notorious impact of last year's January 22 decision. Such steps must be directed at relieving the pressures that bring a pregnant woman to abortion.

Among these pressures threatening mothers-to-be is the lack of money and child support. This can be corrected, and Senator Loran Schmit's introduction of LB 834 on January 14 in the State Legislature is a step in the corrective direction. Senator Schmit's proposed bill would increase the aid to mothers of dependent children from $125 to $175 per month and the aid to each child from $34 to $35 per month.

Senator Schmit should be supported in this action and all of us who regret last January's court decision owe it to the dignity of human life to inform him and other senators of our support. He represents us well in this matter.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Aged Parents' Care Left To Oldest Child

By ROBERT PETERSON
QUESTION: — "There are four of us children, but all the responsibility for our parents falls on me. Mom and Dad are in their 80s and have half a dozen things wrong with them. They still live in the old house but their cash income just covers basic expenses so they can't hire any help. Because I'm the oldest and closest (I live just 25 miles away), my sister and two brothers leave everything to me. I've got a husband and three children of my own to worry about, yet I've got to go over to the folks at least once a week to help them out and do their shopping and cleaning. Is this fair?"
ANSWER: Some attentive children would consider it an honor to care for their aging parents. But with as many personal responsibilities as you have it's understandable that this places an undue burden on you. You should talk to your sister and brothers and find a new solution. It would seem you could all four chip in equally a certain sum monthly so that someone could be hired to stop by and see your parents for an hour or two daily and do any necessary errands. Better yet, you should investigate the advantages of moving your parents to a residence for elders where they'd be assured of good care.

QUESTION: — "I think it's a crime the way science keeps some older people alive when they're helpless bed cases, suffering losses of mind and body which make them tantamount to the living dead. Don't you agree that doctors should put them out of their misery?"
ANSWER: — You have a point, but I think we're all glad to live in a society where science makes every effort to keep us alive — including those few who are seemingly without chance of recovery. It could be pretty shattering to our ideals and sense of confidence if science were not interested, or if doctors were given the right to decide who should and should not be encouraged to live.

QUESTION: — "I'm 46, married, two children, and work at a teller's job in a dull savings and loan association. What I'd really like would be running a shop of some kind, such as men's clothing or sporting goods. But I lack capital and have not retail experience. Should I even consider a change at my age?"
ANSWER: — Sure you should, if your job fails to excite you. Get acquainted with the fact that we can have just about anything in this world we are willing to work for. Get an evening or weekend job at a local retail store just for the experience. This is vital. Keep your ears tuned for shops where owners are looking for a manager or want to retire. You need capital? Wake up to the fact that your own savings and loan association lends money to ambitious dependable people starting new ventures.

QUESTION: — "Aren't older people supposed to sleep more than the rest of us? Last week on a camping trip a couple in their 70s pitched their tent next to ours. We went to bed at 10 and they were still yakking. When we awoke at 6 a.m. they'd had breakfast and were on their way."
ANSWER: — There's a vast variation in sleep requirements of elders. Some require more shut-eye than younger people. Others get by very well on four or five hours of sleep. Those in the latter category usually make up for it with catnaps during the day.

Good accountants earn good money!

Deb. Biere
 Professional Accountant for CPA Firm

Not just a job, a good-paying career. It's old-fashioned to think that accounting work is boring and offers bad pay. Today's accountants can earn as much as most junior executives—and if he or she is good, even more. With generous fringe benefits.

Dull Work? Not a chance!

Accounting is the "language of business," and we live in a business oriented nation. The accountant provides information about the financial affairs and operations of an enterprise for the owners, managers, creditors, and governmental agencies. Since the accountant's activities bring him into contact with virtually every phase of a business, he is often promoted into management and even ownership.

A career within 12 to 18 months.

When you graduate from the Lincoln School of Commerce accounting program, you are ready to enter the exciting and rewarding fields of tax work, cost accounting, auditing, or eventually becoming a Certified Public Accountant. The Lincoln School of Commerce has been training and placing accountants for 90 years—they can do it for you too. Judiciary Group To Say Hesser Lacks Experience

By The Associated Press

The legislature's Judiciary Committee voted Wednesday to tell the Committee on Committees that it felt Beatrice Police Chief Merl Hesser did not have qualifications to become director of the Department of Corrections.

Committee on Committees chairman Ramey Whitney of Chappell, said the Judiciary Committee action would be weighed when hearings on Hesser's appointment were held.

Whitney said his committee would not necessarily weight the recommendation heavily.

The Judiciary Committee said Hesser, nominated Monday by Gov. J. James Exon, did not meet statutory requirements.

There had been some question as to whether Hesser had the required 10 years experience in corrections.

The Judiciary Committee originated legislation that went into effect last year, requiring the director to have 10 years experience as a corrections administrator.

Exon, who announced the appointment Monday, said Hesser met the requirements because he has worked on the Lincoln Police Force and has been police chief in Beatrice.

The committee's action meant its members did not believe police work met the requirement, according to committee chairman Sen. Roland Leudtke.

Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance said he wanted action taken quickly so Hesser would not lose his post in Beatrice if he were not confirmed as director.

Hesser said Wednesday he did not feel his experience was in corrections, per se.

Sen. Wally Barnett and Leudtke said they felt they were "in a bind" because Hesser was a personal friend.

Stull suggested sending Leudtke to Exon to discuss the appointment, but that was rejected when Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said "They tried to work with him on Anderson," meaning Dr. Jack Anderson, who gained legislative approval as head of the Department of Institutions after a long fight.

The Committee on Committees will hold hearings on the appointment.

Hesser was named to replace Victor Walker, who resigned.

Omaha Council Refuses To Put Issue On Ballot

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The Omaha City Council declined Wednesday to put the issue of district election of councilmen on the ballot.

The council rejected a motion to submit to voters a city charter amendment calling for election of nine councilmen by districts.

The council's seven members now are elected at large.

The council also declined to submit to voters a proposal calling for nomination of candidates by district in primary elections and election at large in the general election.

Group Restates Its Support For Physical Exams

The Nebraska State Crippled Children's Committee has restated its support for its 1973 legislative resolution calling for mandatory physical examinations of pre-school children.

State Chairman Ray Griffin said that at this time only 23% of the Nebraska school districts require the examinations. Many school districts recommend the physicals, he said, but almost 17% of the students in them never have physicals, as compared with about 4% in school districts where it's required.

The resolution requested that "legislation be introduced and enacted that will require comprehensive physical examinations for all children prior to entering school and at three-year intervals until graduation from high school" as long as it is not contrary to a family's religious beliefs.

Beatrice Mayor Will Hold Job For M. Hesser

Beatrice (UPI) — Mayor Robert Sargent said here Wednesday if there is a problem on the employment of Police Chief Merl Hesser by the state, he will immediately reconsider Hesser's resignation.

Hesser submitted his resignation to the City Council Monday night after being appointed to the post of state director of corrections by Gov. J. J. Exon.

Varner Backs 8 1/2% Pay Hike For NU

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner said Wednesday he hopes to take to the governor and the Legislature a request for an 8 1/2% salary increase for university employees in the coming fiscal year.

Gov. J. James Exon's budget recommendations for 1974-75 propose a 6 1/2% increase.

"I think an 8 1/2% salary increase is entirely appropriate," Varner said in an interview.

He noted that the 1973 consumer price index rose 8.8% and he said "all forecasts indicate the rate will be no less great in the coming year."

The university request budget, forwarded to the Statehouse in the fall, sought for faculty members total compensation increases close to the 8 1/2% figure, Varner noted.

But that was split three ways: about 6% for salaries generally, another 1 1/2% for chancellors' discretionary funds to be used for special merit increases and another 1% to increase the university's contribution to faculty members' retirement plans.

The governor's recommendations propose a 6 1/2% salary increase, somewhat less than was asked for chancellors' discretionary funds and no additional retirement contribution.

Now, said Varner, "I hope the Board of Regents will authorize us to drop the 1% for retirement and make a case for an 8 1/2% salary adjustment just to keep up with the cost of living."

He said he will take that request to the board at its next meeting early in February.

"The cost of living factor is very real," he said. "It's clear to me that an increase of less than 8 1/2% in the year just concluded means lost purchasing power."

"It's no longer a matter of improving salaries, but trying to maintain them."

Reacting to other parts of budget recommendations made public this week, Varner said he was "particularly concerned" by the legislative fiscal analysts' recommendations on the Medical Center.

"I've not seen the breakdowns," he said, "but my impression is that the Medical Center fared poorly."

The fiscal analysts recommended a general fund increase of about 6 1/2% for the Medical Center, while the governor is urging some 16 1/2%.

Overall, said Varner, he was concerned that neither the governor's recommendations nor the fiscal analysts' were closer to the university request.

"Certainly, both were well below the regents' requested figure," he said. "Naturally, we're disappointed there were not closer to the requests."

On the other hand, Varner said he was pleased by the governor's capital construction recommendations, with the single exception of the lack of any recommended funds for an outpatient clinic at the Medical Center.

He said the clinic represents an "acute need for the training of family practice doctors."

But overall, he said, the capital construction proposals from the governor reflected a "very constructive attitude" he believes is indicative of a more positive stance toward the university.

"I take public note of the fact that the budgets were developed and presented in a mood that seems to me more constructive and positive and cooperative this year than in past years."

Industrialists Will Back Bill To Cut Speed Limits

Nebraska industrialists have agreed to support LB873, the bill to reduce speed limits, and distribute information on fuel allocations to members of the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry, according to NACI President Stanley A. Michael of Omaha.

NACI has established a 13-member Energy Council to work with the government in energy conservation plans. The council includes representatives from agriculture, manufacturing, and the natural gas, electrical, petroleum, transportation and construction industries.

Robert B. Daugherty of Valley, president of Valmont Industries, is chairman of the council.

Other members are Willard Soper, Ogallala; Good-All Electric, Inc., W. Wayne Hendrickson, Kearney; Hendrickson Land & Cattle Co., H. W. Harrington, Grand Island; Harrington Feed Yards, Arthur A. THE BLOODY MARY hound.

We've been told time and time again when you've got a good drink, leave it alone. We'd always been sensible and taken that advice until someone said, "But the Bloody Mary is kind of complicated with all that stuff you have to put in it."

We immediately put our best drink detectives to work on the problem. And what happened? They couldn't find any way to un-complicate the Bloody Mary; but in the process of trying, they came up with a tasty and quite different drink that we think you'll like. They substituted a little dry sherry for the spices, and we dubbed it the Bloodhound. In honor, naturally, of their dogged pursuit.

To make a Bloodhound, pour 1 1/2 ozs. Smirnoff into a glass of ice. Add 3 ozs. tomato juice and 1/2 oz. or so of dry sherry.

Smirnoff leaves you breathless.

Fortress-Solid Bastion Closed

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Tumescuh — Comes now a notice for any thug wanting the prestige of staying in the Johnson County Jail: to get in, henceforth, you'll have to break in.

As of one week ago, the picturesque old limestone bastion is closed. District Judge William F. Colwell, urging its demise for at least five years, finally issued an official court order after a fire damaged the facilities' vacant second story.

"Unfit for the housing and detention of any prisoner . . ." reads the posting affixed to the bolted steel door.

Judge, ya gotta be kidding. Like all those people dying to get into cemeteries, it's said that men have committed crimes to bed down in that celebrated Tumescuh prison.

Status, that's what the place has. A real incarceration. As every respectable lawbreaker for miles around knows, this is the only jail in the state with its own connecting patio.

"Jokes For Years"
"There have been jokes for years about this being the Crossbar Motel," said Sheriff Clifford Lacey. "Our bullpen is the only such thing in this state and maybe in the entire country."

Added after the 1872 construction of the jail itself, the "bullpen" is a cage-like exercise area for prisoners. It's been criticized by some as too much of a fringe benefit, by others as inhumane because of the zoo-like image held forth.

There have also been objections that it was the one weak spot in a jail that was otherwise fortress-solid. The three-cell prison itself has limestone walls two feet thick, double bars and a steel ceiling.

According to stories handed down by oldtimers, the walls were further strengthened by — of all things — cannon balls. Each stone was so hewn out that the balls were fitted between to prevent loosening.

Noting that the jail was "still in better shape than lots of others around," Lacey acknowledged that one main shortcoming was its relative isolation. Originally, there was a sheriff's living quarters above the jail, but this was vacated long ago and the sheriff was moved to a house on an adjoining lot.

24-Hour Surveillance
"Today's regulations call for 24-hour surveillance of prisoners and that just isn't possible under this set-up," he noted. "We've been planning a new jail for some time anyway, but now it's an absolute necessity."

Meanwhile, county prisoners probably will be housed in Beatrice.

The future of the colorful old blockhouse?

The Johnson County Historical Society has been standing by for years with handcuffs ready. President Thurman Wadley said the group has been offered the facility and "we'll eagerly accept."

"Tourists have been stopping by the old jail for years even when it was in use," he said. "Now we'll put in a few displays and make it a real attraction. Just think of all the people who will want their pictures taken by the one and only Crossbar Motel."

JAIL'S FUTURE . . . discussed by Wadley, left, Lacey.

Turfgrass Council Is Given $25,000 In Budget Proposal

In 1974, the Nebraska Turfgrass Council will receive $25,000 for research if the governor's budget is approved, said speakers at the Nebraska Turfgrass Conference held here Wednesday.

Joe Hadwick, superintendent of the Lincoln Country Club, and Dick Crowl of the Rhodes Chemical Company in Kansas City, noted that in Gov. J. James Exon's 1974 budget requests, Exon has asked that all funds requested by the Turfgrass Council be allotted to the council.

The $25,000 the council had requested is comparable to what surrounding states are receiving for turfgrass research, Crowl said.

Because the council's request for state funds was turned down last year, the council relied on contributions from private turf interests, said Hadwick. About $1,300 was collected in this way last year. Of this money, the University of Nebraska requested $1,200. Consequently, the balance now stands at about $115, he said.

The prospective funds have not yet been assured, however, because funds requested by the governor must be approved by the state legislature.

One of the best methods of getting approval for funds is to show how these funds will go back to Nebraska and benefit the state, Crowl said. It has been estimated that landscaped property is worth 10% more than unlandscaped property.

Hadwick said in spite of prospective state funds the council still needs financial support from private interests.

New Officers Elected By Turfgrass Growers

The Midwest Turfgrass Growers Association, a seven-state organization of professional turfgrass growers, held their annual meeting and election of officers Wednesday in conjunction with the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Turfgrass Conference.

This association will host the American Sod Producers Association annual meeting in Kansas City in July, 1975.

The new officers are president, Don White, Iowa Nursery Sod Corp., Des Moines; vice president, Ed Keavin, Emerald Sod Farms, O'Fallon, Mo.; secretary-treasurer, Norman LeGrande, Hendricks Sodding and Landscaping, Lincoln; directors, Paul West, West Turf Farms, Fountain, Colo.; William Latta, Princeton Turf, Kansas City; Don Hanson, Hanson Turf Farms, Minden; Glen Hyde, Gothenburg Nurseries, Gothenburg; Paul Whitters, Whitters Turf Farm, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; and Bernard McMurphy, McMurphy Turf Farms, Atlantic, Iowa.

Omahan Buys Famous Painting

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Omaha businessman Duane Hillmer has paid $260,000 for a version of "Washington Crossing the Delaware," one of the best-known and most widely reproduced American paintings.

Hillmer made the successful bid on the painting at an Oct. 25 auction in New York. It was the highest price ever paid at auction for an American painting, according to Dr. Alfred Frankenstein, art critic for the San Francisco Chronicle.

Hillmer's ambition for the painting is simple: "The important thing is that as many young Americans see it as possible." He said the 1851 canvas "captures a fine moment in the life of the greatest American."

The painting, either by Emanuel Leutze or his student Eastman Johnson will first be exhibited at Joslyn Art Museum in mid-February. Hillmer than plans to loan the work to Expo '74, the Spokane World's Fair, for six months starting May 4.

"After that, it's going somewhere to make some sort of contribution to the bicentennial celebration," he said.

Hillmer's "Washington Crossing the Delaware" is a smaller, but otherwise nearly identical copy of the painting now hanging in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

The larger painting, with life-size figures of Gen. Washington and his men, measures approximately 20 feet wide and 12 feet high. Hillmer's measures 68 inches by 40 inches, or about one-fourth scale.

"This is the one you see reproduced in the history books," he said. "It's the engraver's copy. The larger one is too big to tote around."

Arizona Police Arrest Omahan After Wild Ride

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — An alleged drug transaction by a man arriving here from Omaha, ended in a wild ride through Phoenix and a crash near an orange grove, police said Wednesday. Investigators said Leon Copeland, 22, was arrested on charges of kidnapping and assault with a deadly weapon.

Tuesday night after he allegedly abducted a young Phoenix man at Sky Harbor International Airport.

Copeland, police said, told them he paid $3,000 to Don Elledge, 20, Phoenix, after Elledge arrived from Omaha.

Officers said Copeland told them Elledge didn't deliver the drugs, so he abducted him at gunpoint.

Elledge then rammed his car into another to attract police, officers said. No one was seriously injured.

Travel Plan Opening For All

A popular European study/travel program at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will be open for the first time to all interested, regardless of prior university "membership".

The springtime program, which follows the completion of the second semester, is scheduled for May 20 through June 9 and will include a selection of 14 courses taught by university professors. Deadline for registration is Feb. 15, at the Flights and Study Tours Office in the Nebraska Union.

The study tours will combine Lincoln church news is carried on a special page in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

seminars, lectures, interviews, and site visits throughout continental Europe and the British Isles.

All participants will travel from Lincoln to London on a special, low-cost charter flight.

A limited number of applications will be accepted for the charter flight only, but these are restricted to university faculty, staff, students and immediate family.

Each course is offered for three hours credit through the Extension Division, and class size is limited to 10 in most cases.

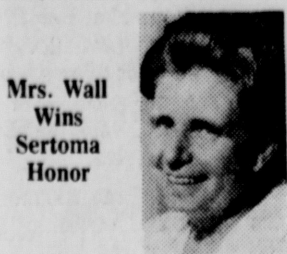

Courses being offered include: "The Cinema in Europe,"

"Comparative Urban Sociology," "Spanish Language and Culture," "Drama in London," "Comparative Economic Systems/Current Economic Issues," "Eastern Europe at the Crossroads of Change," "Field Study in Architecture and Town Planning," "Evaluation of Exotic Cattle Breeds," "Fine Arts Education, British and American," "Early Childhood Education," "Special Studies in Social Welfare," "Social Problems/Independent Readings," "Spanish Literature — Don Quixote," "Contact Hours in International Education/Comparative Education/Britain and Ireland."

Butchers Accept Accord

Dakota City, Neb. (AP) — Members of Local 222 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America have voted to accept an agreement reached in Washington last weekend to end a strike at the Iowa Beef Processors Inc. plant in Dakota City.

A union member reported the vote was approximately 75% in favor of returning to work.

The union spokesman said the union agreed to accept a suggestion of W. J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Washington. The remaining issues in the 188-day dispute will be submitted to binding arbitration.

Approximately 1,200 union members voted.

Lewie G. Anderson, business agent for the AFL-CIO local, said all workers will receive raises of 15 cents an hour, retroactive for all hours worked between last April 12 and July 12.

"Upon returning to work all IBP employees will get a 30-cent an hour wage increase," he said.

While the employees are working, an arbitrator will be selected by Usery and Dr. John Dunlap, head of the Cost of Living Council, Anderson said.

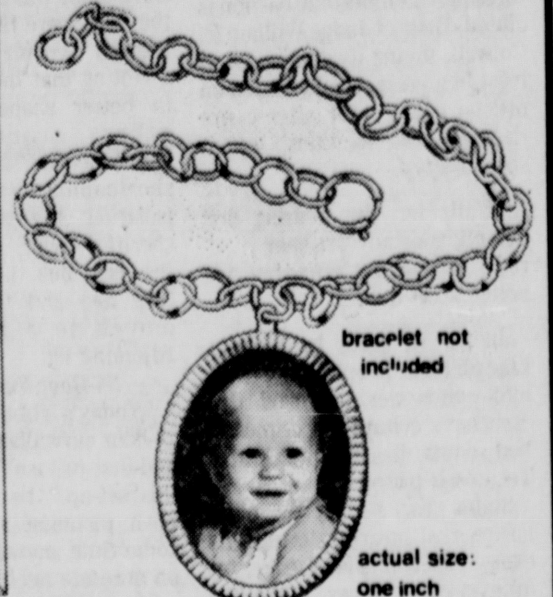

"The arbitrator will take a minimum of 60 days, no later than 90 days, to decide additional wage increases above the immediate 30 cents an hour, along with determining a cost-of-living provision and duration of the new labor pact," Anderson added.

McCook, Neb. (AP) — The McCook home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nokes was bugged for 17 days late last year while the Nokeses were under investigation for the slayings of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hoyt, according to The McCook Gazette.

Microphones were concealed in light fixtures in the living room and the bedroom, the newspaper said, quoting a source close to the investigation who asked to be unnamed.

Secreted in an unused attic was some $6,000 worth of electronic eavesdropping gear.

Twenty-one miles of recorded tape were accumulated before the surveillance ended.

Nokes awaits sentencing for first-degree murder in the death of Wilma Hoyt, 56, and second-degree murder in the death of her husband Edwin, 55.

had little more than a "skeleton of facts" to link Mr. and Mrs. Nokes to the slayings.

A court order was obtained from the Red Willow County District court, authorizing the surveillance, and Lancaster County officials and the State Patrol loaned equipment said to have been used for the first time in Nebraska.

To escape detection while the bugging equipment was being installed, the Nokeses were kept under watch at their jobs. An officer's home was used initially as the listening post, but the operation was switched later to a room at the Royal Motel in McCook.

The surveillance began Nov. 4, and according to the newspaper's source, 90 per cent of the conversations recorded between Harold and Ena Nokes dealt with the investigation and how it was progressing.

"They were amazing in their analysis of the case and how it was not going good for us — and they were right," the source said.

But nothing really incriminating was said, the source reported, adding, "They didn't have to come out and tell each other they'd done it."

At one time, Harold said he was sorry he had gotten Ena "into this." At another time, Ena remarked, "we should have taken the rings off and put them on the table." What was most helpful to authorities was the couple's intensive interest in the investigation.

At times the couple would go to bed early, as early as 7:30 p.m., and wake up at 4 a.m. to talk about the case, the source said.

Authorities got the jitters at one time when the electronic gear began interfering with television reception at the Nokes home. A TV repairman was intercepted before he could respond to a call, and the trouble was corrected by technicians.

On Dec. 20, the Nokeses were taken into custody for the slayings. Sixteen days later, on Jan. 4, Harold Nokes told of the crimes in 158 page confession filed in the office of Frontier County Atty. Fred Schroeder.

Nokes said a relationship with Mrs. Kay Hein, 30, daughter of the Hoyts, started with a kiss at a New Year's Eve party at the McCook Elks Lodge and grew into a sexual relationship that eventually involved not only Harold but his wife. According to the newspaper account, Nokes told authorities Ena entered into the three-way relationship because "she was afraid of losing me, I think, and she went along with it, and she thought a lot of Kay because her and Kay did a lot of things together."

Nokes was blackmailing her.

The Hoyts also were disturbed that their daughter had chosen to stay at the Nokes home after getting out of the hospital rather than going to her parents' home in rural Culbertson.

The Hoyts "felt like I was trying to take their place as a parent..." Nokes was quoted as saying.

Nokes denied demanding money from Mrs. Hein.

"I told her that it (lodging and food) had been quite an expense and she did bring over some money and I told her I didn't want it," he said.

Mrs. Hein threw the money on his TV set and would not take it back.

Nokes said he painted some of the obscene signs concerning Mrs. Hein which were seen in the area last summer, but said "but I didn't paint near all of them."

"I felt like she had hurt me an awful lot and I guess I tried to hurt her back a little," he explained.

He also admitted putting a defoliant chemical on Mrs. Hein's lawn and pouring sugar in her car's oil. He said his wife also sent Mrs. Hein a red light bulb.

In detailing the events the night of Sept. 23 when the Hoyts were shot and killed in the basement of the Nokes home, Nokes indicated some of the actions were dictated by the fact that he had an injured shoulder at the time.

He said he decided to dismember the bodies because, with his bad shoulder, "I couldn't drag them upstairs...I had no other way to get them out. That was the most inhuman thing, was to cut them up I know. I shouldn't have done that."

He said he had decided to dispose of the bodies in Harry Strunk Lake because it was "the quickest way I knew of...I couldn't hardly have dug a hole very easily with my one arm."

Nokes was asked what he felt like that night in the basement.

"I don't know," Nokes said, "I just don't know. It was just kind of a nightmare. Kind of numb, I guess, you would say. I know after it happened I should have called the law, but I didn't want my wife involved and she wasn't really at all that way...I asked her to leave and she wouldn't leave so the only thing I could think of was the way I could get them out so I cut them up."

Nokes' wife, Ena, 44, is free on $25,000 bond pending sentencing on two charges of illegally disposing of bodies.

The slayings came to light when dismembered bodies of the Hoyts were found in Harry Strunk Lake.

The electronic surveillance was first proposed by Dr. Charles A. Rymer, a Denver psychiatrist, who had been called into the case.

According to the newspaper's source, authorities at the time had little more than a "skeleton of facts" to link Mr. and Mrs. Nokes to the slayings.

A court order was obtained from the Red Willow County District court, authorizing the surveillance, and Lancaster County officials and the State Patrol loaned equipment said to have been used for the first time in Nebraska.

Accidents Killed 35 In November

A total of 35 persons lost their lives on Nebraska's highways and streets during November, 1973. The toll was nearly 13% greater than the 31 persons who died during the same month in 1972, according to Tom Ryan, supervisor of the Accident Records Bureau of the Nebraska Department of Roads.

Most of the victims were men, 29 of the 35; and most of them were 20 years old or older, 26 of the 35.

Oddly enough, although more persons were killed in highway related accidents in November, 1973, a total of 164 fewer persons were injured than during the comparable period in 1972.

In November, 1973, 1,718 persons were injured in accidents on the streets and highways, while the 1972 total was 1,882.

Daylight or dark seemed to make little difference, Ryan's records show. Seventeen of the 35 deaths occurred during the daytime, 18 of them at night.

The relationship with Mrs. Hein ended after she hit her head on a cupboard door and had to be hospitalized. "It seemed like after she had the concussion she had a change in attitude about everything," Nokes was quoted as saying.

Nokes told of differences with Edwin Hoyt over the situation. Nokes said Edwin told him that when Mrs. Hein was under sedation in the hospital, she said

Nokes was blackmailing her.

The Hoyts also were disturbed that their daughter had chosen to stay at the Nokes home after getting out of the hospital rather than going to her parents' home in rural Culbertson.

The Hoyts "felt like I was trying to take their place as a parent..." Nokes was quoted as saying.

Arizona Action Involves Voting Right Of Indians

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Justice Department filed suit Wednesday in what it described as the first federal court attempt to protect the voting rights of American Indians.

The U.S. District Court lawsuit asks that a northeastern Arizona county, heavily populated by Indians, be reapportioned and that a new county election be ordered within four months.

"Voting rights cases have been filed in the South and in other areas for various groups, but this is the first case involving American Indian voting rights," said Assistant U.S. Atty. Dennis Ickes.

'Only Those Who Die Stop Aging'

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

"Aging is normal. Aging is universal. Only those who die stop aging," Harold Read told the 70 physicians, nurses and pastors attending a conference on "Celebrating Old Age — Joys and Sorrows" held Wednesday at Bryan Memorial Hospital.

"I am an old man by all standards," the retired Read said, "but I don't consider myself old." He is an active, enthusiastic volunteer for the Red Cross.

"Isolation is a part of aging... It is the most difficult problem," he said.

"The greatest need of the elderly is a sense of security, but money is not enough," he said. "What we are doing (nationally and locally) is fragmenting our programs (for the aged) so much that nothing seems to happen."

Yvonne Finigan, director of the hospital's medical social services agreed that a coordinated referral agency serving the needs of the elderly is needed in Lincoln. She was one of the four panelists discussing the needs of the aged. Also on the panel were Rhoda Larson, R.N., education coordinator of nursing services at Bryan; Dr. Kenneth Rose, the hospital's emergency room physician; and Mrs. Charles M. Janecek, an elderly person. The Rev. John Paolini, chaplain supervisor at the hospital, was moderator.

"Why, in our enlightened society do we consider old people apart from society?" Read asked the audience, composed mainly of ministers.

"In a society as youth-oriented as ours (the elderly) feel they are rejected because they are rejected in so many ways," he added.

"Churches have done very, very little" to make elderly persons "feel they are really a part of the church," Paolini said in response to a question posed from the audience. "We are so intent on our programs we don't listen to the elderly around us."

Dying and preparing oneself for death was another area investigated by panelists and speaker alike.

Rose said, "When I went into practice 27 years ago, doctors knew when life began and when it ended... Physicians still sense when the time has come (despite frequent attempts at resuscitation) but the family gets in the road, the family won't let them go.

"We've been complicated by our science," the physician added.

But other elderly persons do manage to survive their near-misses with death.

Mrs. Larsen recalled a patient telling her, "I'm a success. Do you know why? Because I'm still breathing."

And the aged who are still breathing have other needs, as expressed by the panelists and speaker.

— They miss the sense of touch, Read pointed out. "There are times when comforting words can't come... a hand does wonders."

—They need transportation, Mrs. Finigan said.

—And they need physical exercise, said Dr. Rose.

"Most people, as they become older, become almost sedentary," he said. "I'm not talking about jogging, cross-country skiing, football or swimming 100 yards a day" but just using their muscles, sweeping, vacuuming, painting a room, hoeing a garden.

"One of the best exercises for persons who are sedentary is walking," he said. And "people don't climb stairs, they poke buttons and go up elevators." Just being out in nature "is good exercise and good for the mind," he said, calling for the city to provide transportation to the parks.

"Getting people ensconced in those high-rises (nursing homes) is depressing to the weak of heart, the physician said.

But Mrs. Janecek is one elderly person who readily gets out and about.

"I am 80-and-a-half and I'm very proud of it," she said.

"I can sit home and cry if I want to, but I'm not... I just go to the horse races."

'The Oath' By Wiesel

Azriel is a madman. He is a witness, a messenger who carries within himself a story he has vowed never to tell. But he is destined to reveal that story; destined to reveal it so another can live.

The main character in Elie Wiesel's latest novel, "The Oath" (Random House) — translated from the French by Marion Weisel — Azriel is, at the time of the story, an aged man. The sole survivor of a pogrom which decimated the Jewish population of Kolvillag, a fictional eastern European town located between the Dnepr River and the Carpathian Mountains.

A young boy at the time of the destruction of Kolvillag, Azriel escaped the conflagration with the sacred Book of Chronicles — the history of Kolvillag, recorded from generation to generation — in his possession.

But because of an oath of silence taken at the time of the pogrom, Azriel is forbidden to tell anyone about his beloved village and its demise. Forbidden to reveal the terror that gripped his friends and family as the terrible monster of bigotry and hatred bore down upon them.

Moshe — Azriel's mentor. A mystic whom the people of Kolvillag thought insane. It was he who imposed the terrible oath on all who were there. He who believed that the persecutors were destroying themselves along with their victims.

"The night belongs to them. It is a night of punishment, of supreme ultimate stupidity; they kill themselves by killing, they dig their own graves by murdering us, they annihilate the world by destroying our homes. Poor mankind is dying of stupidity."

He who sought to put an end to the madness that had haunted his people since the beginning of time.

"The enemy had ruled the elements and used them to decimate, annihilate the tribe of Israel. Yet one man had always remained behind, miraculously unscathed, one man who saw and recorded everything."

Azriel — the one left behind. "Jews felt that to forget constituted a crime against memory as well as against justice: whoever forgets becomes the executioner's accomplice. The executioner kills twice, the second time when he tries to erase the traces of his crimes, the evidence of his cruelty."

And because this one witness was always left, left to tell the story, memory was preserved; death, in a sense, defeated. The tribe of Israel persevered. And while that tradition lived, mankind was spared the ultimate final death imparted if memory ceases.

"We have been mankind's memory and heart too long," Moshe cried before that fateful day. "Now the time has come to put an end to it... We are going to impose the ultimate challenge, not by language but by absence of language, not by the word but by the abdication of the word. Let us take the only possible decision: we shall testify no more."

And the burden fell to Azriel, the only witness left.

He roams the countryside, seeking a means of release from the awful vow. A release that would allow him to die, to relinquish the terrible responsibility left to him by memory.

Though tortured by his recollections of Moshe, Azriel knows the story must be told. In the end, he relents; he transfers the burden — and then goes home to die.

"The Oath" is heady reading. Profoundly philosophical in parts, compelling in others, it contains passages that beg to be read over and over again.

Wiesel has explored a vital aspect of the Jewish heritage, and, with sensitivity and power, has laid it bare for all those who would understand.

Sex Change Is Last Hope

DEAR ABBY: I am a "hermaphrodite." I have breasts like a woman, and the mind and emotions of a woman, yet the lower part of my anatomy is like a man.

I am 24, and my life has been pure hell. I feel like a freak, and have very few friends. I have wanted a sex change operation for a long time, but my parents are against it. They say I would be tampering with God's and nature's plan.

I have been away from home and financially independent for two years. I don't think I am wrong for wanting to be the sex I think I was meant to be, but I can't get anyone to agree with me.

I have talked to several ministers, and none of them has ever heard of this condition. They think I am "queer." I found one doctor who said he had heard and read about this freakish sexual development but he wasn't able to offer any help.

Abby, you are my last hope. Can you help me?

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: Yes. Write to the Erickson Foundation, 4047 Hundred Oaks Avenue, Baton Rouge, La. 70808. And tell them Abby told you to write. Good luck and God bless.

I made the same mistake. When my husband started coming home for lunch I asked him to please eat downtown because it upset my routine. He ate his lunches downtown. Pretty soon he started eating his breakfasts downtown, too. And then he started staying downtown for dinner.

He finally asked me for a divorce so he could marry the pretty little waitress who had been serving him his meals! Fortunately before the divorce went thru I was able to win him back, but I never realized how close I came to having a RUINED DAY.

Planners Deadlock On Repair Site Zoning

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City-County planners deadlocked Wednesday on a change of zone application made by Frieden Construction Co. to construct a maintenance repair facility south of the Municipal Airport.

The dirt moving firm wants a zoning change from AA Rural to H-2 Highway Commercial to build the facility to repair the company's trucks, Bill Haggerty reported. The ten-acre site is located south of West Vine and NW. 27th.

The vote was 3 to approve and four to deny. Five votes are needed to make a recommendation to the City Council. The matter will be carried over one month.

Voting yes were commissioners Bob Allington, George David, and Louis Shackelford. Art Duerschner.

Thelma Miller, Bruce Nims and George Williamson voted no. State Sen. Jerome Warner was absent.

Planning Director Doug Brogden has recommended denial of the application, contending that approval would constitute a spot zone and would result in the urbanization of an area before utilities are extended to the site.

Brogden said that if the application is approved, "it would be difficult not to approve other (zoning changes for) areas surrounding the airport."

Septic Tanks

Haggerty told the commission that the company is willing to install septic tanks until such time that sanitary sewer lines are extended. He also said the company is willing to grant the airport necessary noise easements.

The application got a boost from Rolland Harr, executive director of the Airport Authority, who noted that the authority has a policy encouraging industry to locate in the vicinity of the airport.

Harr contended that the authority would prefer having the land surrounding the airport developed commercially or industrially, rather than be developed residentially.

Although he voted for the application, Allington said he could have voted either way "and been unhappy about the way I voted."

He asked for a report next month from the Public Utilities Department on the extension of utilities to the area.

Review Authorized

In other action the commission authorized Williamson and Brogden to review the county's road program as to compliance or noncompliance with the Comprehensive Plan.

County Engineer Walter

Hoppe presented a $1,068,500 1974 road program and $8,278,500 six-year program for the county.

Included in the 1974 construction program is the replacement of the Superior St. bridge over Salt Creek.

Commission members voiced pleasure that the hazardous structure would be replaced. Plans call for the new bridge to be of steel girder construction 50 feet wide and 290 feet long.

Hoppe said construction should begin this spring with completion by fall, if the project is approved by the County Board and the state.

Review Wanted

Williamson told Hoppe that next year the commission would appreciate having a chance to review the roads program before the plan is submitted to the state for review.

He said the administrators' action gave the impression that "our recommendations had no merit," Williamson said.

He said a review of the city's policies is warranted since the current distribution of storm sewer costs in some cases is "inadequate, if not unfair," Williamson charged.

Present city policies dealing with cost distribution of off-site improvements is based on the size of the line involved, not the location.

Delineation Urged

Allington said the city should delineate specific areas where growth should be encouraged, instead of "just saying everywhere but east."

It has been city policy to encourage growth generally to the north and west, instead of opening development in the Stevens Creek watershed east of 84th.

In other action the commission approved a zoning change requested by Western Realty from H-2 Highway Commercial to K light Industry south of West O and east of SW. 27th. The company plans to build an industrial plaza.

The commission also:

Change of Zone

- Approved application of Peterson Construction Co., from AA Rural to A Residential, at 3rd and Lincoln, Cheney.
- Approved amendment to provide width of driveways traversing front yards in the M Restricted Industrial District be increased from 24 to 30 feet.
- Deferred amendment relating to freestanding or banjo signs in the G-1 Planned Commercial District.
- Approved South Dale Acres, located at So. 56th and Safford Rd.
- Held over Portschke Heights Replat, located south of Plume Lake Rd. and west of Highway 2.

Omaha Man Found Slain

Omaha (UPI) — Police Wednesday were investigating the shooting death of a young Omaha man whose frozen body was found on a North Omaha porch.

An autopsy showed that Jackie Chambers, 21, died after being shot four times in the chest and once in the back Tuesday night.

His body was found in a frozen pool of blood by an insurance agent early Wednesday. Police said a chrome plated revolver was beneath his right hand and a set of keys was found on the body.

Panel Says Plans To End Steam Heating Still Stands

The Lincoln Electric System's (LES) plans to junk steam-heat service to downtown merchants stands, as far as the Mayor's Energy Coordinating Committee is concerned.

At its second meeting Wednesday, the committee unanimously agreed that the question of continuing steam-heat service was an economic consideration, not an energy-related matter.

It was at the request of the City Council Monday that the committee was asked to consider the installation of a heating system for the central business district.

The council asked the committee to review various reports conducted on steam-heat, including a recently concluded report by the Southeast Chapter of the Professional Engineers of Nebraska.

The engineers recommended that a uniform system be built and called LES's plans to phase out steam heat by 1976 "short-sighted."

Decision Still Stands

Last Friday the LES Board agreed that its previous decision to discontinue steam-heat still stands since, according to LES Administrator Walt Canney "no new information was presented."

Energy committee member Dan Remigio strongly stated his objections to reviewing the controversy, saying, "If I were a member of that board, I'd be insulted."

"I don't know what Helen (Boosalis, council chairwoman) was thinking when she tossed us this hot potato," Remigio said.

Emphasizing he was not opposed to providing heat to downtown businesses, Remigio said he felt it has been proven that the issue was one of money, not energy.

Canney reported that studies had shown that if the K St. power plant were to be remodeled to handle steam-heat, "somebody would have to come up with between $2.5 and $4 million for a declining market, with accelerating costs."

114 Customers Left

Currently, there are 114 steam-heat customers left, with the majority being able to hook-up to interruptible natural gas service, Collins Wilcox of Cengas said.

Acting Committee chairman John Alden said it disturbed him somewhat that the group did not hear a presentation from the professional engineers group before reaching a decision.

The committee also heard from the Lincoln Jaycees who reported on plans to institute a city-wide computerized car-pooling program. Employers will be contacted within the next several weeks about the plan.

Alden reported that Gateway would be interested in offering the use of the shopping center's parking lot to workers who would then take express buses downtown to work.

Remigio also has suggested that Goodyear may be able to provide space for northeast Lincolinites, while other members suggested that church parking lots around the city could provide additional parking spaces.

The committee will hold another meeting Feb. 6.

In other business Williamson, with the concurrence of other members, asked the Planning and Public Works Departments to review present city policies on the extension of off-site improvements to developments and to consider a way to encourage radial growth as recommended in the Goals and Policies report.

Williamson was referring to Monday's City Council action in which the council opted to stick to current city policies on extending utilities to two developments. One was located near Mahoney Park in northeast Lincoln and one in southwest Lincoln.

The commission had recommended last month that a new distribution of cost formula be drawn up to encourage growth to desired areas by which the city would pick up some of the bill for extending water, sanitary sewer and storm sewer lines to new subdivisions.

Williamson Displeased

Williamson indicated he was displeased with the Public Works Department for recommending the City Council to continue its present policies, since, he said "they're the ones that asked us to consider this in the first place."

POSTCARD

San Francisco — Nothing pries open the morning like coffee. Gray and stormy days around Snug Harbor. Wind and rain beat on our sturdy doors. I've been waking later.

On sunny days I'm up with the birds — full of cheerful bird song myself. These days I wake up like a bear.

The moppets say: "Don't talk to the Cap'n until he's had his coffee. He'll have you keelhaunched, by thunder."

Stormy weather. I left my resistance in dreamy, steamy Acapulco.
Coffee.

I make my coffee in an aluminum percolator. The glass top fell off and broke so I top it with a cup. The bottom just fits.

For a few years I had a mechanical marvel labeled "Sunbeam". The sunbeam was the cloud in my life. It had an automatic warmup. That is, it sensed when the coffee was getting cool. It turned on again. Warmed it to the proper steaming fragrance.

Only — about every third warmup, the blasted thing lost its sense. It didn't shut off. The coffee boiled over. I spent a lot of time with a mop.

What about the guarantee? There was a guarantee, bless your heart. The repair shop for guaranteed items is in a very shoddy section of town.

There are no parking spaces. The people who run guarantee repair shops are surly folk.

"OK. Come back in three weeks."

I said: "Three weeks? Without coffee?"

He said: "Look. We've got a lot of work around here. If you don't like it, take it somewhere else."

I got it back in three weeks. Meantime I was making campfire coffee: Boil water in a pan. Throw in a handful of coffee. As soon as it comes to a boil, take it off. Toss in a small splash of cold water — it settles the grounds.

Three weeks later I picked up the mechanical genius. I brought it home and made coffee. It warmed up twice. The third time it boiled over.

I gave it up. I bought a percolator. I broke the top. But thank heavens I found a cup that fitted the hole.

We lived happily ever after.

I take my coffee with cream and sugar — a crime to the coffee cognoscenti.

I learned to drink coffee at sea. All seamen load their coffee with cream and sugar. It is the wakeup and warmup before you go on watch.

The coffee break was invented at sea. Long before stenographers thought of hustling downstairs at 10:30 to yak about boyfriends, astrology and diets.

Indoor Courts 'Aid' Amritraj

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer
Omaha — For playing on an artificial surface indoors for the first time, Vijay Amritraj didn't fare too badly.

Amritraj, the second-seeded player, beat Rumania's Toma Ovici, 6-4, 6-0, here Wednesday night at Civic Auditorium in the opening round of the sixth annual Midlands Tennis Tournament.

"This is the first indoor meet I've entered," Amritraj said. "There aren't any indoor courts in my native country of India and I just haven't played in any indoor meets until this year. "I've only been a pro for two years and wanted to get more experience outdoors before I tried the indoor circuit."

The handsome Amritraj explained that there are no indoor courts in India because there is no need with warm weather prevailing the entire year.

Vijay, who has an older brother, Anand, competing here, found the artificial surface different than outdoor courts. "The bounce indoors is so true and the ball bounces up and stays up in the air longer, giving a player time to recover," he said.

"An artificial surface is much slower than an outdoor grass or concrete surface and it took me awhile to get used to it."

Besides playing indoors for the first time, Amritraj had another handicap to overcome. "This is the first time I've played since my injury," the 20-year-old pro said.

"I tore some ligaments in my right shoulder last fall and have been home recovering, so I was probably playing a little cautious still protecting the injury."

However, it didn't look like Amritraj was just coming off any kind of injury as he had little trouble in disposing of Ovici.

Ovici played on Rumania's Davis Cup team last year and led his team to a win over Russia. He is the second-ranked player in his country.

The top-seeded player in the tournament, Jim Connors, will meet Australia's Kim Warwick at 6:30 p.m. Thursday with former Omaha Bill Brown and Colombia's Ivan Molina playing in the next match.

Connors was scheduled to play Wednesday night, but his match was postponed to Thursday by tournament officials to give America's co-top ranked player another day to recover from the flu.

Karl Meiler and Jurgen Fassbender, a pair of Germans who are ranked No. 1 and No. 3 west of The Wall, winged their way through the opening round.

Fassbender swept past Romanian Ion Santieu 6-2, 6-4.

New Fonner Surface Not Quite 'Dirt' Cheap

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Grand Island — Probably the only ones who will say "thank you" for the major change this year at Fonner Park will be the horses.

That's because the biggest improvement at the track, which opens its 21st horse racing season on Feb. 28, is a completely rebuilt race track. Although the stretch has previously been rebuilt twice, it was the first time the entire 5-8ths mile course has been reconstructed.

"It was just amazing that when we took the old dirt out, how much we had to put back in," said Fonner general manager Al Swihart. "They said that it takes about twice as much dirt to replace the old dirt because the salt that we put in every year makes the dirt flatter. The salt breaks down the dirt's consistency."

After taking out the 1 to 2 feet of old dirt, Fonner stumbled into the following roadblocks:

—finding dirt or, more precisely, sandy loam to replace the old dirt. "We found some at the K-Mart excavation site and the rest at the sand and gravel pits here in Grand Island," Swihart said.

—"Getting enough dump trucks to take the old out and to put the new in, since there's so much construction work going on and most of the trucks are used for those projects," he said.

—the unusually wet summer and fall hampered progress.

The track rebuilding project was completed in November, but should have been done in July. The overall improvements still aren't completely finished, however.

Meiler, seeded No. 2, dusted off Australian Paul Kronk, 6-2, 6-0.

In other matches: —Jamie Pinto-Bravo of Chile also benefited from the slower court in a 6-2, 6-7, 6-2 victory over John Feaver of Great Britain.

—Ian Crookenden, making a tour comeback after several years as a club pro, overwhelmed Colin Robertson of Oklahoma City, 6-2, 6-0.

—Ian Fletcher, ranked No. 8 in Australia, had little trouble with UCLA graduate Dick Bohrnstedt in a 6-2, 6-1 match.

In another match, Byron Bertram of South Africa defeated Nick Kalo of Greece 7-6, 6-1.

In the day's final match, Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y., toppled New Zealander Jeff Simpson, 6-0, 6-2.

FRAZIER, ALI SCUFFLE ... Brawl Disrupts TV Taping Session

Compiled From News Wires
NEW YORK — Joe Frazier, goaded beyond endurance by Muhammad Ali's alternate braying and quiet needling, burst from his chair at a TV network studio Wednesday and got into a fullscale brawl with the man he will fight on Monday at Madison Square Garden.

This was no gimmick. This was the real thing. Frazier, sitting calmly while watching the re-run of their March 1971 bout which Joe won by unanimous decision, commented after the ninth round that Ali had had to go to the hospital after the fight.

Ali countered: "I went to the hospital for 10 minutes. You went for a month. Why bring something like the hospital up? That's ignorant. It shows how dumb you are."

The word "ignorant" ignited the fury in Frazier. He leaped to his feet and shouted: "I'm tired of you calling me ignorant. Damn tired of it. Who are you calling ignorant?"

Ali did not budge from his chair, but his brother Rahaman, who was among the 60-odd onlookers in the midtown ABC-TV studio, jumped in front of Joe.

"You in this too?" a growling Frazier demanded. Immediately, Ali was on his feet to defend his brother. He hurled himself at Frazier, putting a headlock on the former heavyweight champ. They rolled onto the two-foot high platform, trying ineffectually to punch at each other as stagehands and handlers rushed to separate them.

Among those who charged toward the platform was Tom Frazier, Joe's brother. Eddie Futch, Frazier's trainer, kept trying to haul his fighter out of the skirmish, yelling: "Joe, Joe, don't! What are you doing?"

"I don't want anyone calling me ignorant and I'm sick of taking his abuse—just wait until Monday night," Frazier blustered as he was led from the studio, failing to watch the final six rounds of the rerun and leaving Ali and Howard Cosell to take it from there.

Frazier whirled at the door and Ali shouted to him: "Monday night, boy, you be on time!"

"I'll be there," Frazier snapped. "Make damn sure you're there."

Handlers for both men expressed dismay at the bitter physical exchange, insisting they had warned each fighter not to come to the joint TV session, which followed earlier physical exams.

"All I know," said one of the men from Frazier's camp, "is that Joe didn't want to do the show at all, and he told the network that if Ali got out of line at all, he would walk out."

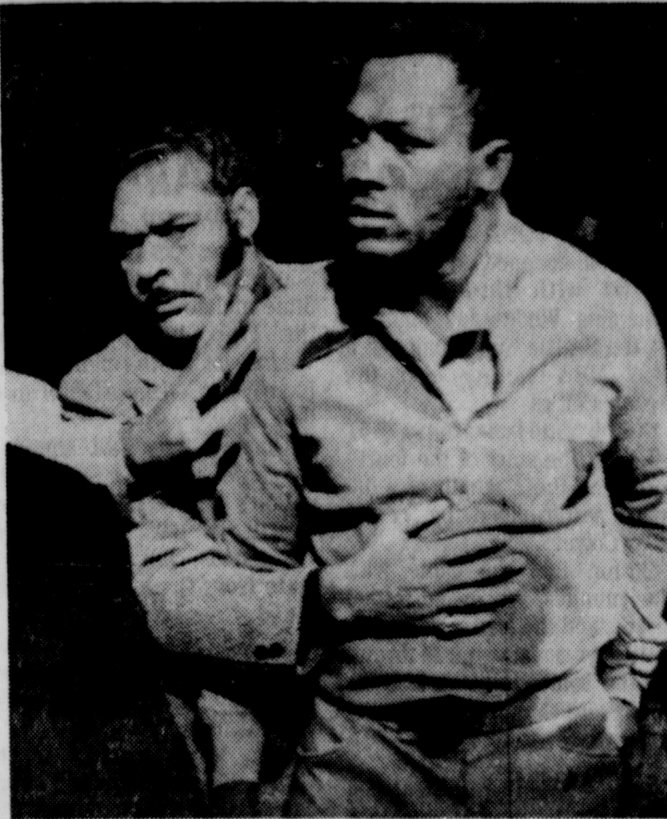

"He was mad, I wasn't mad," Ali bellowed afterward. "Joe blew his cool — ain't that silly?"

Muhammad said he grabbed Frazier around the neck because he feared Joe might try to strike him. "He jumped up, balled his fist up," Ali added. "I had to get up and hold him off. He was crazy."

"Any man who would wear high-heeled red shoes has got to be crazy. Look at me. I'm conservative. I could go visit President Nixon or go to a concert with what I'm wearing."

Ali paused to let people admire his brown pin-striped suit, with double-breasted vest, white shirt and conservative black shoes.

"That man buys a mink coat and invites all the press up to see it while other people are starving," Ali continued, non-stop. "Me? I got a Rolls Royce but I don't drive in the ghettos. I just ride it among white people."

"That man might do anything. He rolled the dice but I finished the game."

Once Howard Cosell who was the moderator of the show asked the fighters to "please maintain discreet tactiturnity."

"Shut up," said Ali to Cosell. "You ain't my boss. Don't call me boy."

The two fighters underwent official physical examinations earlier and nothing was found wrong with Ali's questionable sore right hand.

"It's always hurt, but nobody can ever find the pain," he said. "But I promise the world something strange will happen Monday."

Knights To Host Six Guns

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — It's been a long season so far for Albuquerque goalie Ray Reeson.

Last year's most valuable player for the Omaha Knights has been the mainstay for the Central Hockey League's Six Guns, winners of only 7 of 44 games.

Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum Reeson returns to face the team he led to the Adams Cup CHL playoff title last year as Omaha attempts to gain ground in an already tightly-bunched CHL race.

The third-place Knights have 47 points while second-place Ft. Worth has accumulated 48 and Oklahoma City has 50 (not counting Wednesday night's game with Albuquerque.) Fourth-place Dallas with 45 points trails Omaha by two points.

Omaha has taken all three Ak-Sar-Ben tilts with the Six Guns. The Knights hold a 2-1-3 record in New Mexico for a combined 5-1-3 record against the CHL's cellar team.

Despite not losing the last nine games at Ak-Sar-Ben, the Knights aren't counting on an easy triumph.

"They've been cast in a spoiler role for the rest of this season," said Knights' business manager Curt Gordon. "But Reeson has kept them respectable. He's had to face a lot of shots."

Reeson has achieved a 3.27 goals-against average in 43 games. It's not an outstanding figure, but considering the defensive support he's received, it's creditable.

The Six Guns have triumphed once away from home — a string coach Fred Creighton's Omahans would like to see continued.

Clay: Curtis Taunted Irish

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tommy Curtis is UCLA's holler guy, yelling encouragement, applauding a basket, pointing a finger at an opponent.

Dwight Clay of Notre Dame accused the peppercorn guard of taunting him during last Saturday's 71-70 victory that ended UCLA's all-time record basketball winning streak at 88 games.

That was at South Bend. The same teams, top-ranked Notre Dame and second-rated UCLA meet again Saturday at Pauley Pavilion.

"If this had been a playground game, I'd have busted his head," Clay said of Curtis' actions last Saturday.

Curtis said he was puzzled by Clay's remarks.

"I was trying to figure out what was happening. What he said was amazing."

"This Dwight Clay thing is being taken in the wrong perspective. I'm out there to have fun. Don't take basketball so seriously; it's not big business."

"I'm not trying to hurt somebody," Curtis said. "When the entire thing is in the proper perspective, heated remarks are so pathetic."

"Usually, when a guy misses a shot, I'm just clapping as if to say, 'Hey, man, it's just a game. Have fun. Get back on the floor and have fun.'"

"But I guess most guys get caught up in the politics, in the pep rallies."

Curtis was quick to avoid any hint of a grudge with Clay.

"I'm so far above that situation that it's just ridiculous. I've been playing ball a long time. If you go back and forth in the press, guys will write what they want to print. It's immature to get involved in that type of conversation."

Coach John Wooden of UCLA said he has advised Curtis against making gestures at opponents.

"I wish he wouldn't," said Wooden. "Taunting? I don't know. I think it's his personality."

Curtis said that the Bruins won't seek revenge but will be trying to atone for mistakes made at South Bend, when they blew an 11-point lead in the last 3 minutes, 20 seconds.

"I'm a very self-critical person, and I think you must be to attain what you want in life. I know I'm not only speaking individually, but from a team standpoint. We want to play the very best possible and we don't feel we did."

NU Tankers Host Meet

Nebraska's swimming team — in dual meets — hopes to rebound from last weekend's loss at Iowa State (84-29) when it hosts Bemidji State and Buena Vista Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Coliseum pool.

"For a small college Bemidji State has had some good teams," Husker swimming coach John Reta said. "I'm really not sure how strong they are this year but I know they have some good freestylers because we tried to recruit some of them."

Reta said that Iowa State is probably closer to their peak times than Nebraska. "It will be interesting to compare our times between now and the Big 8 Tournament," he said. This year's Big 8 Swimming meet is in Boulder, Colo. March 7-9.

Reta praised his freestyle swimmers. "Paul Duxbury, Bill Davis, Scott Martin and Steve Raynor have been doing well for us," he said. "But Bob Krouze and Terry Seymour (breaststroke) are having a little weight problem and need to lose some more pounds."

Howells' Win Streak Faces Stiff Challenge

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

If Howells expects to attain a niche in Nebraska high school basketball history, the defending Class C champions must pass their toughest assignment of the season Friday night.

West Point Central Catholic, prime Class B ratings material with an impressive 9-2 record, invades Howells to threaten the Class C leader's 33-game winning streak.

A loss would end Howells' chances of cracking the 10 longest basketball winning streaks in Nebraska prep history. Defending Class D champion Hampton, which already has qualified among the elite with a 38-game winning streak, faces an easier assignment Friday.

Coach Jerry Eickhoff's Hawks host Monroe. It should be a tuneup for next week's Crossroads Conference Tournament at York.

Coach Jim Morrison's Howells club faces a double weekend challenge. If West Point Central Catholic doesn't accomplish an ambush Friday night, Madison intends to achieve one Saturday night at Madison.

The leading Nebraska high school basketball winning streaks include:

—51 games, by Atkinson St. Joseph, 1946-48.

—44, Wakefield, 1947-49.

—42, Chadron Prep, 1949-51.

Morrison

Eickhoff

- 42, Chadron Prep, 1951-53.
- 41, Grand Island, 1946-48.
- 40, Western, 1954-56.
- 39, Weston, 1947-48.
- 38, Fairbury, 1971-72.
- 38, Hampton, 1972-74.
- 37, Chadron Prep, 1954-56.
- 37, Hildreth, 1943-45.
- 36, Holdrege, 1966-68.
- 35, Lincoln High, 1958-61.
- 35, Pawnee City, 1969-71.

In games involving Lincoln teams, it's:

Papillion at Lincoln East, Friday night — East is a heavy favorite, provided the Spartans are not looking ahead to North Platte on Saturday.

Hastings vs. Lincoln Southeast,

Puetz To Address Concordia Group

Seward — New York Jet Garry Puetz will address a 10:10 a.m. convocation at Concordia's Weller Auditorium Feb. 6.

Puetz, a 12th round draft choice out of Valparaiso, earned a starting spot as a rookie with the Jets at offensive guard before being sidelined with an injury.

Friday night, Johnson Gym — The Knights exploded for 46 points in the second half at Grand Island last weekend. They expect to maintain that momentum.

Omaha Gross at Lincoln Plus X, Friday night — The Thunderbolts will be tested thoroughly, but should uphold their new Class B ratings status.

Lincoln Northeast at Norfolk, Friday night — Coach Tom Millsap's Panthers are struggling with a 2-8 record. Playing Northeast isn't the right kind of situation to turn things around.

Lincoln High at Ralston, Friday night — The Links played their first poor game of the season last weekend against Northeast. They should be primed to bounce back.

Millard vs. Lincoln Northeast, Saturday night, East Gym — The Rockets are playing like a No. 1 contender should play.

Beatrice v. Lincoln Southeast, Saturday night, Johnson Gym — If Beatrice is going to upend a Lincoln team, this is the Orangemen's best chance.

David City Aquinas at Lincoln Plus X, Saturday night — Provided Aquinas doesn't lose Friday night at Wahoo, it will bring a 12-0 record into Lincoln. But Plus X plays tougher competition.

Lincoln East at North Platte, Saturday night — The battle could be won in the front line. North Platte may be better, but East has a knack for winning important games.

THE PADDOCK

By Mark Gordon
Star Sports Writer

What's In The Future?

For years, Henry Brandt has had the most difficult chore of the five general managers of Nebraska horse race tracks.

His problem: convincing horsemen that they should race their stock at the State Fairgrounds knowing full well that (1) the possibility of injuries to their horses was greater and (2) the purse schedule was not as lucrative as at other tracks.

Perhaps, now with the introduction in the Unicameral of LB 914 the outlook is brighter. Brandt said the bill would authorize $5 million in revenue bonds to upgrade the facility.

It is imperative that the Legislature pass this bill that will not only be a boost to Lincoln racing but to the entire state's racing picture as well.

Despite the tremendous strides Ak-Sar-Ben has made, the Omaha track is cognizant that if a decent facility were available in Lincoln, then the task of wooing nationally-prominent horsemen might be easier. The Lincoln meet follows Ak-Sar-Ben each summer.

And it's considerably easier to attract horsemen knowing they will gladly drive the 55 miles to the Capital City and stay four months during the summer rather than the 11 weeks the Omaha track is running.

A Question Of Economics

With better horses comes an increased handle. As an example, last year's Capital City Handicap on the first Saturday of the meet was probably the finest field assembled outside of Ak-Sar-Ben in one race last season and it attracted a Lincoln one-race record mutuel handle of $53,593.

That's what horse racing is all about. The better horses produce the greater handles. The higher the handle the more the track can afford to offer in purses and, consequently, the more that will be returned to the state through mutuel tax and admission taxes.

Brandt has conservatively estimated that the Lincoln handle would double with an improved facility. Last season, the State Fairgrounds returned $344,637.30 to the state of Nebraska. In a few years, a return of $1 million would be a realistic estimate.

During the summer, the Fairgrounds racing season is the only "wheel in town." This newspaper annually receives calls from persons in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa wanting additional information on the Lincoln races so they can attend.

Is the present dilapidated plant what Lincoln wants its outstate visitors to gain as the impression of Nebraska's Capital City? Or is a modern plant capable of generating more than twice the present revenue a more desirable alternative?

A well-known Nebraska horseman told this writer last summer that he "couldn't afford to run my better horses at Lincoln." Despite wanting to run them here, he was unwilling to risk injury to his better animals so he shipped them to Chicago leaving only his cheaper stock in Lincoln.

It's time the Legislature and the city of Lincoln cooperate in this venture by approving LB 914 and providing the Capital City with a horse plant that doesn't disgrace the State Fairgrounds.

Before Ak-Sar-Ben executive director Tom Brock died last May he was one of the strongest boosters for a renovated Lincoln track. Hal Brown, for 10 years the sports editor of this newspaper, was Brandt's biggest supporter in this venture.

Both of those men have died, but it would be an everlasting tribute to them to have one of their wishes come true.

NU Gymnasts Set For CU

Despite the loss of two primary performers and a month's layoff from competition, Nebraska gymnastics coach Francis Allen said his team will be ready when it hosts Colorado Saturday at 2 p.m. in Hensley Hall (formerly University High School).

"We've lost junior Gene Mackie (all-around performer) for the year," Allen said. "He broke his leg last year and is now a hardship case, giving him his junior eligibility again for next year."

Another gymnast, Mike Buckner, who Allen said played a primary and important role on the side horse, was lost because of scholastic ineligibility.

Nebraska's last competitive meet was on Dec. 28 when five Huskers joined the East-West All Stars against the Swiss National Team. Allen said the layoff will not hurt the Huskers. "This will be the Huskers' first dual meet of the season after participating in four tournaments. Last year Nebraska defeated the Buffaloes 146-90-133-95."

"Without Gene, Jim Unger (all-around performer), who is also a co-captain, will have to keep us together," he said. "All of our seniors will also be in good shape for this meet."

Several seniors Allen mentioned were Hal Traver (side horse), Bob Bowden (still rings), Barry Cross (parallel bars) and Allan Everett and Jeff Johnson (free exercise).

Seattle Edges Past Celts, 98-97

BOSTON (UPI) — Spencer Haywood dropped in two free throws with three seconds remaining Wednesday night to lift the Seattle SuperSonics to a 98-97 NBA victory over the Boston Celtics.

Boston came back from a 75-67 deficit at the start of the fourth period on the strength of a 13-point performance by center Dave Cowens.

Boston tied the game with nine minutes, 77-77, and traded baskets and the lead with Seattle until Haywood's two free throws put the Sonics into the lead 98-95. Cowens sank the final basket of the game at the buzzer.

Seattle grabbed a halftime lead, 52-42, as the Celtic offense could not get untracked.

Sonic guard Fred Brown paced Seattle to a 52-42 halftime lead with 16 points. Brown finished with 26 points to lead all Seattle scorers. Haywood added 23.

Boston fought back in the third period after falling behind by 15 points with six minutes gone in the second half. Forward Paul Silas started the Celtics comeback at 5:50 with a driving lay in and hit again a minute later to start an 11 point Boston outburst.

Cowens led both teams with 32 points. John Havlicek added 23 to the Boston tally.

OSU Matmen To Compete For All-Stars

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Three wrestlers from Oklahoma State and two each from Oregon, State and Iowa University head the West lineup announced Wednesday for the eighth annual East-West College All-Star meet Feb. 4.

Topping the West squad is Oregon State's Greg Strobel, the nation's outstanding collegiate wrestler of 1973. Tom Phillips, 118 pounds, will join his teammate from Oregon State on the squad.

Strobel, a 190-pound senior, was undefeated in 40 matches last year and is unbeaten so far this season.

The West squad, to be coached by Brigham Young's Fred Davis, was announced by a selection committee of the National Wrestling Coaches Association, co-sponsor of the event with the U.S. Wrestling Federation.

The Oklahoma State wrestlers are 126-pound Billy Martin, undefeated 142-pound Steve Randall and heavyweight Tom Hazell. Another Oklahoman, Jeff Callard of Oklahoma University, was chosen at 167, but OU wrestles Michigan the same night and Callard had to decline.

Iowa is represented by Dan Holm at 150 and Jan Sanderson at 167.

CRETE, Neb. (AP)—Mike Rehn, 6-5 Doane forward, scored 37 points to boost the Tigers to a 92-77 non-conference basketball win over Kearney here Wednesday night.

Doane, tied with Hastings and Concordia for the lead in the Nebraska Independent Athletic Conference, shot 47 per cent from the field, compared to a cool 36 per cent for Kearney, the Nebraska College Conference leader.

Tom Kropp and Loren Killian led the Antelopes with 18 each. The lead changed hands several times in the first quarter, but Doane took command at halftime, 46-40, and never trailed from that point.

The win boosts Doane to 12-5 for the season. Kearney is 9-5.

Attorney Denies WFL Signings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney representing James McAlister, Kermit Johnson and Booker Brown Wednesday denied reports the three Southern California college football players had signed contracts with the new World Football League.

Hastings To Cite NU's Osborne

Hastings (UPI) — The city of Hastings has proclaimed Feb. 4 as Tom Osborne Day in honor of the Nebraska football coach.

Osborne, a Hastings native, will receive a key to the city and a congratulatory message from Hastings Mayor Marty Malouf. Officials said Wednesday that Osborne and his family will appear at the Imperial Mall during the afternoon to meet the public, press and visit with old friends.

In addition, the new Cornhusker mascot and various area high school bands and cheerleaders will participate in the event.

Shutt Goals Aid Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — Steve Shutt scored two goals in less than two minutes during the second period Wednesday night to lift the Montreal Canadiens to a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The win gave Montreal 60 points for the season and placed them six points behind first place Boston in the National Hockey League's East Division.

The Canadiens, with four of their regulars out of the lineup because of injuries, avenged a humiliating 9-2 defeat handed them by the Leafs last month when they played in Toronto.

Shutt scored at 15:41 to tie the score 2-2 after taking a pass from Dave Gardner. He combined with Gardner again at 17:18 to put Montreal in front.

Canadiens' captain Henri Richard spoiled the Leafs' 2-0 lead with a tip-in off Serge Savard's blueline blast at 13:05 of the same stanza.

Swedish rookie Borge Salming scored his first NHL goal as he one-handed a rebound through the legs of Montreal goalie Bunny Laroque to give the Leafs a 1-0 first period lead. Rookie defenseman Ian Turnbull scored early in the second stanza on a 60-foot shot that eluded Laroque to put Toronto in front 2-0.

Michael Trope, the attorney representing the three top draftees of the Southern California WFL franchise, said only an "unbelievable offer—more money than O. J. Simpson is making—and that's unforeseen," would cause a signing with the WFL before the National Football League clubs hold their draft.

Trope's remarks were in response to a report that the WFL already had signed some players, including McAlister and Johnson, running backs from UCLA, and Brown, offensive tackle from University of Southern California.

"Even after the NFL draft, the only way they're going to sign is if the WFL comes up with figures substantially higher than offers of the NFL," he said.

McAlister said Wednesday he was pleased to be drafted by the Southern California franchise but said he and Johnson will sign with the team that offers the best contract. "I'm waiting for the NFL draft," said McAlister.

Minimum Wage Change Sought By Cafe Owners

By The Associated Press
A bill which would exempt elementary and secondary school students from the state's minimum wage law received support from several owners of small restaurants at a hearing before the Legislature's Labor Committee Wednesday.

Many of those appearing were owners of small franchise restaurants in small towns, who said they could not afford to pay minimum wage.

The students were added to the minimum wage requirements last year in a bill which also raised the minimum wage.

Sen. Cal Carsten of Avoca, sponsor of LB665, said the bill was aimed at giving students an opportunity for more jobs.

But Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha opposed the bill, saying if the Legislature granted an exemption to students, there would be a "flood of requests for other exemptions."

Yvonne Leung of the Women's Lobby also opposed the bill. She said granting an exemption to students would mean many women who are unemployed would not be able to compete with students for jobs, since they must be paid minimum wage.

The committee took no action on the bill or two others also heard.

One of those was a committee bill to provide a minimum death benefit for state patrolmen killed in the line of duty.

The bill was prompted by the murder of Trooper George Amos Jr. last year. The Legislature passed a special bill to provide $15,000 for his widow and children.

Much of the discussion centered around whether the death benefits should apply in the case of a patrolman killed in an auto accident while on routine patrol.

Patrol Superintendent Col.

C.P. Karthouser said the benefit should apply in those cases. He presented two amended versions of the bill for consideration.

Sen. Mahoney also offered an amended version which would include paid firemen and conservation officers in the benefits.

But Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell told the committee patrolmen now have the best death benefit program of any state employees, including a $5,000 insurance policy paid for by the state.

Whitney said the committee could increase that insurance if it thought it was not enough, but should not start providing special benefits for certain groups, because "if you start doing this everyone would want to be included."

The option proposal, he said, would allow for flexibility to meet local situations. But Morrissey said even more important was the matter of local control.

The Waldron measure, he said, "leaves the control of the situation in the hands of the county boards," while the mandatory proposal would leave nothing for counties to decide.

The county attorneys were joined in their stand by the County Officials Association, represented by Arnold Ruhnke of Lincoln.

"We would like to see you leave the decision with the county boards and this would obviously not do that," Ruhnke said, referring to the mandatory bill.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff then suggested the idea of putting the committee system up for a vote in each of the 21 judicial districts as an alternative to requiring participation automatically.

Morrissey objected saying "frankly, that's not much of an alternative."

The committee took no action on the bills.

Nor did the committee act on LB774, which would require counties of more than 20,000 inhabitants to have full-time county attorneys who would be prohibited from engaging in private practice.

Also held with amendments pending was 628, which would prohibit county attorneys serving counties of more than 60,000 inhabitants from engaging in private practice.

Resolution Asks Forced Busing Ban

By United Press International
The Nebraska Legislature adopted a resolution Wednesday which asks Congress to propose a U.S. constitutional amendment to prohibit forced busing of school children.

The resolution, authored by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, was adopted on a 30-12 vote.

Copies were then prepared and sent to each member of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate as well as to the president and vice president of the United States.

The resolution asks for an amendment which would require "no student be assigned to nor compelled to attend any particular public school on account of race, religion, color or national origin, or (that) busing be used for such purposes."

During earlier floor debate on the resolution, Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha attempted to kill the resolution saying "there is segregation in public schools in Nebraska, particularly in Omaha."

The Omaha school system has a federal lawsuit pending against it which contends the system is segregated.

Chambers also described the proposal as "Gov. George Wallace's resolution," but added while the resolution was "obviously racist," Carpenter was not.

Here is the vote of the lawmakers on the resolution:

For (30): Burbach, Carpenter, Carsten, Carstens, Clark, Dickinson, Goodrich, Hasebrook, Johnson, Kennedy, Kime, Kremer, Lewis, F., Lewis, R., Mahoney, Marsh, Marvel, Moylan, Nore, Proud, Rasmussen, Savage, Snyder, Stromer, Stull, Svas, Waldron, Whitney, Wilse, Against (12): Anderson, Barnett, Cavanaugh, Chambers, Felman, Fowler, Kelly, Luedtke, Marsh, Simpson, Stahmer, Warner.

Not voting (7): DeCamp, Duis, Epke, Keyes, Richendifer, Schmit, Skarda.

Coyote Shooting Bill Advanced

By United Press International
The Legislature Wednesday gave 34-0 first round support to a bill which would once again allow hunters to shoot coyotes from public roads, excluding the Interstate.

The bill, LB699, was introduced by Sen. Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia who said reinstatement of the provision for shooting predatory animals was needed in order to control the growing coyote population.

The section of law which previously allowed road hunting was inadvertently repealed by the Legislature when it passed a new set of rules of the road last year with a Jan. 1, 1974 effective date.

Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell said he supported the bill but added he hoped in the future there could be some way around shooting from the road as a means of predator control.

"We should keep looking for a more realistic way of dealing with the problem," he said. "I am not enthusiastic about road hunting. It is a safety hazard."

The committee statement on the measure, prepared by the Agriculture and Environment Committee said those who testified in support of the proposal contended "sport hunting was virtually the only means remaining by which the population of coyotes could be controlled."

Sen. Blair Richendifer of Walthill also said he had mixed emotions about the measure. He said he realized there was a coyote problem, but he added he felt the bill was counterproductive.

"There is an energy crisis and this bill is encouraging people to drive around using fuel we know is short," he said.

At one point in the debate Sen. Walter Epke of York said he was confused. He said he thought the measure was primarily for the benefit of rural interests but he noted a number of urban senators had spoken on it.

Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln assured him urban areas had an interest in the measure. "Where do you think the manpower is coming from to keep down the coyote population?" he asked.

A short time later Sen. David Stahmer of Omaha, who said he was no hunter himself, posed the question of "whether it would be easier to bus the hunters from Omaha to the coyotes or bus the coyotes into Omaha."

Bill To Expand Omaha College District Offered

The Legislature voted Wednesday to allow a bill to be introduced that would expand the Omaha Technical Community College District to include all of Douglas and Sarpy Counties.

The District now has the same borders as the Omaha School District.

The non-Omaha portion of Douglas County and Sarpy County are now part of the Eastern Nebraska Technical Community College District.

The bill was sponsored by the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee. Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha led the floor fight for the bill.

Public Defender Bill Called Too Inflexible

By United Press International
County attorneys, using local control and need as issues, Wednesday opposed a mandatory statewide public defender system in favor of a voluntary county option proposal.

Before the Legislature's Judiciary Committee for hearing were LB669, the committee's own bill, and Callaway Sen. J. James Waldron's LB936.

Waldron's proposal would allow counties to decide whether to join forces and establish a district attorney office while the committee bill would simply abolish all county attorneys and establish the district attorney system.

In both measures judicial districts would have an impact. In the Waldron bill the counties deciding to set up a district attorney office would have to be in the same district. In the other bill the judicial districts would be the district attorney districts.

Thomas Morrissey of Tecumseh, representing the Nebraska County Attorneys Association, said the mandatory measure would not meet the needs of all areas of the state.

He said the approach wasn't flexible enough to take into account the differences in population distribution.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Thursday

Pisces can perceive and get behind the scenes and emerge with a clear picture. Rejoice on Pisces is a fine idea, especially if the odds against are overwhelming. These natives locate weak points and capitalize on them. Pisces is sensitive to the needs of others and knows how to touch proverbial funny bone. Pisces may appear indecisive but the decision usually goes in favor of this native — when the chips are down.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friend who argues about money is on weak ground. Know it and utilize common sense. Refuse to be intimidated. Discard gossip. Insist on factual information. Conservative family member is on right track. If you are receptive, you will avoid embarrassment and financial mishap.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You have incentive. You push ahead. Some claim you are being too aggressive. Don't be influenced by such talk. You have right to assert yourself. Furthermore, you are going to make contacts which help assure future security.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What blocks you is timidity. What propels you to success is willingness to take cold plunge. Know it — do something about it. Get wet. By so doing, you will be tearing aside obstacles. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio could play principal roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Be ready for clash of ideas. Defend your position with logic, imagination. State needs. Carry out ideas. Don't fall into trap of lethargy. Be analytical but put pieces together. Refuse to be satisfied with half-baked position. Go forward!

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): Lie low. One who can pull strings should be given time to make definite decision. Don't give impression that you are nervously awaiting word. Mate, partner, close family member can be trusted. Consider. This aids — enables you to stand tall amid turmoil.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may be reaching for something which does not exist. Know it and do something about it. Review interpretations. Avoid fooling yourself. See situations, individuals in realistic light.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Nothing is apt to occur halfway now — it is all or nothing. This applies especially to personal relationships. Game playing is finished. Decision time has arrived. Member of opposite sex has demands which are reasonable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Hold off on new projects, contacts. Review past. Outline future plans. Construct on solid base. Leave no loose ends. It is more important than usual to be thorough. If observant, you could make valuable discovery. Aries, Libra persons might be involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Health matters affecting relative could dominate. Key now is to be sympathetic without becoming inextricably involved. Mature approach is a necessity. Otherwise, you waste efforts and fail to help others or yourself. Get going with creativity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What appears to be a bargain may, in actuality, be a trap. Know it and don't rush to accept first offer. You have right to shop, to compare and to insist on durability. Cancer individual and another Capricorn could figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Situation at home demands attention. Relative may be taking liberties in effort to gain attention. Be understanding without being weak or foolish. One who is envious may put roadblock in path. But you overcome, and delay is temporary.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What was restricted, obscured, is a "secret" is brought into open. Frank, forthright approach now is most constructive. State case, clearly, without pulling punches. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons may be involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have inner strength, you see you through periods of crisis. You are artistic, have unusual voice and a sense of drama. You can "reach" people and many you draw to you are born under Taurus and Libra. July should be one of your most significant months of 1974. New stars, contacts are featured this year, along with greater sense of freedom and independence.

Truck Weight Hikes Advance Unopposed

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Two bills which would authorize highway weight limits for trucks 15% above current maximums sailed through legislative hearings Wednesday without opposition.

The measures, billed as energy conservation proposals, were held by the Public Works Committee for later action.

Both bills would empower the Department of Roads to authorize vehicles to carry 15% more than the maximum weight limits on specified Nebraska highways.

LB941, sponsored by Sen. Jules Burchard of Crofton, would implement a permit system for specific vehicles approved by the department for operation on specified roads, but only during frost-free periods between November 1 and April 1.

Before issuing any such permit, the state engineer must assure himself that conditions are such that the additional weight would not result in "damage to roadbeds."

LB923, introduced by Sen. Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove, would authorize the state engineer to approve increased weight limits on specified roads for specified periods of time.

It states that the department must first determine that "no significant damage to highway surfaces" would result from the additional weights.

Kennedy said the bill is designed "to help the consumer and the transportation provider" during the energy fuel shortage.

Without such a measure, he said, it may be difficult to deliver needed goods to small communities.

The Nebraska Wheat Growers Association, concerned with the movement of grain and other products, endorsed the proposal.

(State law already provides an exception for the movement of grain from the field to storage or market, permitting vehicles carrying such goods to exceed maximum weight limits by 25% when economic conditions require speedy movement.)

Burchard said he prefers a special permit system to "give assurance" of less violation of the law, and provide "some recognition of who is hauling the heavy loads."

Neither bill provides a time limit on the 15% exception.

The Department of Roads described its position on the bills as "neutral."

Also held for later action was LB749, a bill which would allow exceptions from competitive bidding for public power projects when at least two-thirds of the members of the board of directors determine that a negotiated contract is needed to complete the project "in time to meet service requirements of its customers."

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh sponsored the bill, citing the need for undelayed construction of a proposed hydro-electric power plant near Lynch.

The Nebraska Public Power District, which is planning the generation unit, supported the measure.

But both DeCamp and NPPD attorney Gene Watson of Lincoln urged the committee to submit the issue to a legislative study prior to the 1975 session of it cannot endorse enactment of the bill at this time.

Watson said the current energy crisis and its attendant shortages has increased the problem of completing projects in time to meet customer needs.

LB749 was opposed by the Nebraska Building Chapter of the Associated General Contractors whose attorney, Dean Kratz of Omaha, said competitive bidding assures the public of "the best price" for its money.

"We don't want a power district to be able to sit down with one contractor and negotiate a contract," Kratz said.

K. Rasmussen Plans To Seek Treasurer Post

Omaha (AP) — Kurt D. Rasmussen, a Democrat from Omaha, filed Wednesday for the office of state treasurer.

Rasmussen said he would like the treasurer post to be a part time job. He is a division manager of Sears and Roebuck Co.

He is a native of Denmark and became a U.S. citizen in 1964. Rasmussen said that surplus funds should be placed in several banks around the state instead of a select few.

He lost an election for the Omaha Public Power District Board in 1972 and unsuccessfully sought the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor in 1970. He also failed in attempts to gain a seat on the Omaha and District 66 schools boards.

In 1968, he was elected a delegate to the Democratic national convention as a Humphrey supporter. He tried unsuccessfully for the Omaha City Council in 1965.

He is a member of the state Democratic Central Committee and the Omaha Human Relations Board.

Plessman Files For Legislature

George Plessman of Crete filed Wednesday for election to the District 32 legislative seat of Richard Marsh of Milligan.

Board To Await Exxon Energy Proposals

By United Press International
The Legislature's Executive Board Wednesday decided to await Gov. J. James Exon's recommendations on legislation needed at the state level due to the energy crisis.

But at the same time the board directed preparation of legislation which would block the export of Nebraska's electricity to other states unless there is an actual surplus to be allocated.

"We don't want this surplus to get out unless it is a surplus," said Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, chairman of the Executive Board.

William Peters, the state's energy chief, however, told Carpenter he hoped states to the south of Nebraska, especially those producing natural gas, wouldn't do the same thing.

Carpenter said that first of all he didn't even know if such a bill would "be worth the paper it was printed on," and secondly, "this is completely different."

He said natural gas is a resource over which no one has any control as to location, but people do control the location, and provide the money for, electrical generation facilities.

The decision to await gubernatorial direction, which would include a price tag, was to have been conveyed to the governor by Peters.

Peters, along with Eldin Ehrlich, both were in Washington Monday and Tuesday visiting with federal energy officials.

Ehrlich said no one could tell them the real extent of the fuel shortage, but he said "they all still feel it is real and not a hoax."

He also said officials gave gasoline rationing about a 50-50 chance of happening.

Gov. Exon Scolded By Several Solons

Several state senators scolded Gov. J. James Exon Wednesday in a half-hour discussion which turned sharply partisan.

"I object to being called irresponsible by someone who comes in and asks us to raise taxes," Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, the only announced Republican gubernatorial candidate, told his colleagues.

"The gentleman treated us like school children."

Legislative response to Exon's Tuesday budget address was prompted by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who said the governor acted like "a truant officer" in his appearance before the lawmakers.

Exon urged the Legislature to overturn the "irresponsible" action of the State Board of Equalization in reducing the personal income tax rate from 13% to 11% and to adopt a budget which meets state needs.

Both Carpenter and Marvel had urged the board to cut the tax rate last November.

"I wanted the board to follow the law," Marvel explained. And the law, he said, requires the

AP Promotion Manager, Boyle, Dies At Age 60

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Edward L. "Ted" Boyle, promotion manager of The Associated Press, died of an apparent heart attack on his way to work Wednesday. He was 60.

Employed by The AP since 1942, he was a reporter and general desk editor before joining the promotion department. He was placed in charge of the department in 1964.

In that post, Boyle directed the distribution of information concerning AP's corporate and operational developments, its advertising in trade publications and its dealings with public groups and individuals.

Holter Against Sunday Racing

United Methodist Bishop Don W. Holter of Lincoln is against a legislative proposal to allow horse racing on Sundays.

Bishop Holter, resident bishop of the church's 145,000 members in Nebraska said, "I question the priorities which would call for establishment of Sunday horse racing."

2 Omahans Selling Ads Are Charged

Two Omaha men have been charged with two counts each of obtaining money under false pretenses in connection with recent incidents in Lincoln in which businesses paid for advertising in a "Fraternal Order of Police" newspaper.

Both men pleaded innocent to the charges in Lancaster County Court. Trial was set for March 11.

A 23-year-old Omaha man was arrested Tuesday after a businessman became suspicious and called the Lincoln Police Department.

A 35-year-old Omaha man was arrested at police headquarters Wednesday morning when he arrived to inquire about the other man's arrest.

Police said that businessmen reported that they were contacted by a telephone caller who said he was with the Lincoln Police Department and selling ads for the fraternal newspaper.

Lincoln police said they have never heard of a Nebraska Fraternal Order of Police, although there is national order.

Police said the man arrested Tuesday had a list of about 30 Lincoln businesses from which he was to collect sums ranging from about $25 to $40.

Rape Incident Charges Filed Against Shelby

Arthur Lee Shelby, 19, of 3417 Holdrege, was charged in Lancaster County Court Wednesday with the rape of a 22-year-old Lincoln woman Monday night.

Shelby was arrested early Wednesday morning by a University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus policeman who found him sleeping in the lounge of the UNL Faculty Club at 1520 R.

A preliminary hearing on the charge against Shelby was set for Feb. 12. Bond was set at $3,500.

More Purchasing Control For County Board Sought

The City-County Implementation Commission (CCIC) Wednesday directed its newly structured legal task force to draft legislation giving the County Board more control over county purchasing activities.

That proposal would require the County Board to approve any purchases made by elected officials over $5,000 and to advertise for bids on the merchandise.

County Atty. Paul Douglas, in reviewing the proposal, said the measure would supercede elected county officials' authority to purchase whatever items they wanted without approval of the County Board.

Burnham Services Set; Ex-Nebraska Educator

Funeral services for Dr. Archer L. Burnham of Lincoln will be 2 p.m. Friday at the Westminster United Presbyterian Chapel in Lincoln. He was executive secretary emeritus of the Nebraska State Educational Association NSEA, past superintendent of schools in Beatrice and Scottsbluff, a retired Lt. Col. in the Army National Guard, and a veteran of WW I.

He authored several books and courses and contributed frequently to state and national educational journals.

He was born in Stanton County. He received A.B. and M.A. degrees from the University of Nebraska, and a Ph.D. from Colorado State University.

He was a member of the NU Alumni Association, NSEA, National Education Association,

Said CCIC secretary Don Shanefelt, "This is a major change." Shanefelt said he was surprised that the proposal has sailed so smoothly through the purchasing task force and Citizens Advisory Committee because of the changes the bill would make in current county purchasing practices.

Said Douglas, "That's because the full implications weren't known."

The question of drafting that legislation arose when CCIC Chairman Jack Thompson reported that the legal task force has asked to be excused from bill drafting activities and from issuing legal opinions.

A letter from attorney Chauncey Barney said the task force would be willing to review any proposed legislation or contracts.

Douglas, and other CCIC members said they had assumed that the committee "was going to do what Barney said they weren't going to do."

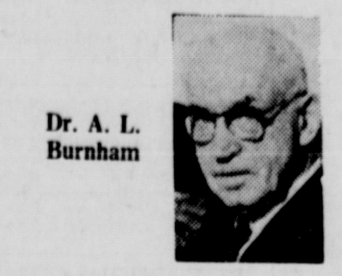

As a result the CCIC appointed Douglas and City Atty. Dick Wood to be the two members of the task force and directed that the purchasing legislation be drafted for submission to this session of the Legislature.

Douglas voiced reservations that he and Wood would not have enough time before next week to draft the bill when all committee bills must be introduced.

On another matter the CCIC directed the budgeting task force to do some more work on its recommendations that the county develop a more sophisticated budgeting system. The commission instructed the task force to be more specific, including the type of staff that may be needed.

The CCIC also passed on two public works task force recommendations to its Citizens Advisory Committee for study.

Those recommendations call for the city and county traffic engineering duties to be consolidated and operated by the city and county and city street lighting programs to be merged.

Plant Site Pleases Kawasaki Officials

Japanese officials of Kawasaki Motors Corp. (KMC) indicated in a Lincoln news conference Wednesday they are extremely pleased with their selection of the Capital City as the site of KMC's $20 million motorcycle production and assembly plant.

And as the first foreign motorcycle manufacturer to make its products in the U.S., KMC officials demonstrated they are dead serious about making a success of their decision.

KMC Executive Vice President Alan Masek said in an interview that KMC believes "in terms of corporate responsibility, we'll be a better American company than the American companies are," and an integral part of Lincoln's future.

"To make this operation successful, we ask your strong support," Kiyoshi Yotsumoto, president of KMC's parent Kawasaki Heavy Industries Ltd., told reporters and Nebraska officials.

KMC President Yoji (George) Hamawaki said the corporation chose Lincoln from among 80 Midwest sites because "everything fit just right."

"We know people in Lincoln, Neb., know about how to work," Hamawaki said. "Besides, Lincoln is the right place for distribution and transportation to be very convenient for all over the country."

In the next three years, KMC will eventually employ 1,000 workers, with an average individual salary of $7,000 to $8,000 annually, officials said.

Sadaichi (Sid) Saito, KMC manufacturing director, will move from KMC headquarters in Santa Ana, Calif., to manage the Lincoln plant.

Saito, 36, a key figure in developing the Kawasaki Z-1 motorcycle, said the Lincoln plant will employ about 300 people at first: welders, painters, assemblers and skilled machinists.

Present plans call for Saito to be the only Japanese brought into the factory, Hamowaki said.

While the KMC officials are bent on achievement in Lincoln, they also displayed uninhibited humor to reporters and city, county and state officials on hand.

Lancaster County Commissioner Robert Colin Sr. presented the Japanese with Big Red hats, making them honorary members of the Cornhusker fan club. That brought outright warm laughs, and Hamawaki wore his hat throughout the press conference.

There were profuse exchanges of gifts among the KMC executives and Nebraska officials. Gov. J. James Exon, after saluting the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce for helping locate KMC in Lincoln, presented the Japanese admiralships in the Nebraska Navy.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf presented the entourage keys to the city.

Referral Approved

The Nebraska Public Service Commission reported it has authorized the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co., Omaha, to retire and remove its stockyard facilities at Norfolk and Meadow Grove.

Nutrition Plan Funding Supported

The Association of Nebraska Community Action Agencies Wednesday decided to support an effort to seek funding for a state-wide nutrition program for the elderly.

According to the proposal, 120 communities would be involved in meal delivery and social and educational activities for elderly persons.

Twenty-five communities have, or are now developing such programs using funds granted under the Older Americans Act, according to Lana Balka, chairman of the association and director of the Lincoln Action Program.

Balka said that an evaluation of a model project in Thurston County showed that medical assistance costs and institutionalization of the elderly can be reduced by implementing the program.

She noted that Nebraska ranks second only to Florida in per capita senior citizen population and that Nebraska's institutionalization rate for senior citizens is 7.9% compared to the national rate of 4%.

Balka said that funding for the proposal would be sought from the state, the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity and money available under the Social Security Act.

In other action Jim Crisp, director of the Blue Valley Community Action Agency was elected president, replacing Lana Balka who is leaving Nebraska.
